MRS. WHIPPLE, JR., IS STRICKEN AT FEAST

Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., one of delegates stricken ill at dinner of Girls' Club convention held at Webster Lake. The diners are believed to have been poisoned by one of the dishes served at the feast. The illness of the delegates broke up the convention.

GROVER AND WIFE RECONCILED

Sharkey Decision Upheld by Board

RADIO PREVENTS STEAMSHIP CRASH

400 PASSENGERS ARE IN PERIL AS CUNARDER MISSES U. S. WARSHIP

A radioed warning piercing a thick blanket of fog off the Massachusetts coast narrowly averted a disastrous collision between the Cunard liner Caronia and the U. S. destroyer Paulding anchored alongside a captured ship on Rum Row.

The huge liner had dropped passengers at Boston and was heading out to sea to shape a course for New York. After passing the Graves Light she had picked up speed and her big prow was cutting a high wave through the choppy sea.

DECKS CROWDED.

Nearly 400 passengers were on deck enjoying the cool East wind after the scorching they had endured during their short stay at the pier in East Boston.

With the sudden drop in temperature fog sprang up. The liner was enveloped and visibility was so low that half speed was signalled to the engine room.

On the bridge, anxious officers peered ahead, unseeing.

Then, with a dramatic suddenness, the wireless in the ship's radio room began to sputter. Through

REUNION FOLLOWS DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Eleanor C. Grover who was sued by Lyndon V. Grover, wealthy Lynn shoe manufacturer, for divorce, and countered with an action for seperate support, and who is now reconciled with her husband. Sensational charges were hurled on both sides during the trial.

GROVERS MEET AND MAKE UP AT SHOE MAN'S MAINE CAMP

A whole flock of little joys danceda the chill lawn before No. 36 King's Beach road, Lynn, todayand it was revealed that Lyndon V. Grover, Lynn shoe manufacturer, and his wife, Eleanor C. Grover, have become reconciled.

The happy reconciliation might be laid to the hot wave or to accident or both, but no matter how it happened, Mrs. Grover once more is talking her breakfast opposite "him" since last Wednesday and had returned to his Lynn home as mistress.

Today she even came to Boston on a shopping tour, riding in the Grover car, driven by Harry J. Spicer, Grover's chauffeur, who testified against her during the divorce trial bitterly waged to no avail in Salem Probate Court.

And the way it happened!

Last Wednesday—first day of the scoring mercury—Mrs. Grover went to her husband's camp at Lake Sebago, near Portland, Me., for a short re.

It was entirely by accident of course that the manufacturer picked exactly last sunie day to go to camp for a brief rest himself.

Exclamations, silence, glances, capitulation—Eureka!

Together they motored back to Lynn, where Mrs. Grover once more stepped over the threshold into the magnificent home Grover built at No. 36 King's Beach road. Now

COOLIDGE ACCLAIMED BY MIDWEST CROWDS

St. Paul, Minn., June 8 (A.P.)—Political differences were forgotten today as the people of Minnesota and the Northwest joined in honoring President Coolidge—their guest for the day.

Coming into the territory which was a battleground in the last political campaign on a non-political mission—to pay tribute to the Norwegian immigrant—the executive was given a welcome that did not know the bounds of race or party.

Thousands of cheering men, women and children, lining the Union Station concourse and streets near by, greeted President and Mrs. Coolidge on their arrival. Thousands of others awaited an opportunity to get a glimpse of them today, to hear the President's address at the Norse-American centennial celebration at the State Fair Grounds, or to see them at close range at a public reception tonight at the State Capitol.

While here the President and Mrs. Coolidge are guests at the home of

WARM WEATHER TO FOLLOW SHOWERS

With eleven drowned as the culmination of the first hot wave of the season, Boston and New England residents renewed their vigilance in the cool of an East wind today, in expectation of warmer weather to come.

Showers are due within twenty-four hours, according to weather sharps, and then a spell of warmer weather. No hot wave is in sight, however, the weather man announces.

The new forecast was: "Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; probably local thunder showers. Warmer Tuesday and in northeastern Massachusetts tonight. Moderate east shifting to south winds."

Despite precautions exercised by police universally, the following death toll by drowning as marked up over the week-end:

William Stephen Olansky, eighteen, of No. 20 Atwood street, Allston, drowned in the Charles River opposite the Metropolitan Driving Club stables in Brighton.

Isaac Person, drowned at West Boston Bridge, Charles River, Boston.

Joseph Letender, drowned in

SHIP AND PLANES GO TO SEEK AMUNDSEN

Aboard S. S. Ingertre, June 8 (A.P.—(By Wireless).—At 9:30 today the Ingertre, carrying the Norwegian government's Amundsen relief expedition, was proceeding toward Spitzbergen at her maximum speed of 10½ knots per hour.

The seaplanes F-18 and F-22 were slung across the deck ready for instant service whenever needed. They will be used in searching for the missing explorers who started for the North Pole from Spitzbergen in two flying boats May 21.

Washington, June 8 (A.P.)—Amateur operators are requested by the Navy Department to listen in on wireless tests when the three amphibian planes of the MacMillan Arctic expedition fly from the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia, Wednesday to Boston, whence the expedition will sail June 17.

ARREST OF 'KEY MAN' IN HOTEL DEATH NEAR

Through all the heat and the succeeding chill blast, the police worked in an effort to solve the killing of Mrs. Mary Price in the Hotel Hollis and today they announced that success was near.

An arrest will be made within a few hours, police officials declared, the man to be arrested having occupied a room in the hotel on the morning of the murder, and having been missing since.

A key to another hotel room, one that fitted the door of the "Brown Derby" wardrobe mistress' room, is missing with him, according to the authorities. The man wanted is known to have killer tendencies and has served time for law transgressions.

In connection with the case, police today called to headquarters Miss May Jensen, member of a vaudeville team playing in Boston, and a girl who occupied a room at the Hollis.

Miss Jensen, who has told the police freely of incidents she noted at the hotel, appeared at police headquarters with two men friends, one of whom is connected with the show business.

AWARD TO SHARKEY UPHELD BY STATE

By JACK CONWAY

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today upheld the decision of Referee Johnny Brassill in awarding Jack Sharkey the verdict over Jim Maloney on a foul in the ninth round of their battle at the Crosscup-Pishon Post's charity boxing show, at Braves Field.

The commission also instructed the legion committee to present Sharkey the $1,000 gold belt which he won when he defeated Maloney for the New England heavyweight championship.

Maloney's supporters claimed that under the boxing law the referee was obliged to consult with the judges before making a final de-

PLANS TO HAIL RUM CONVICTS STIR TOWN

Gloucester, June 8.—Law-abiding citizens of Gloucester were roused to a pitch of inarticulate rage today by the wholesale distribution of circulars calling for a general participation in a "royal welcome" to four rum-runners returning home after serving terms at Atlanta.

The circulars, signed "Gloucester's Committee on Absent Sons," and headed: "Gloucester to Welcome Her Returning Sons," flooded all the stores on the main streets of the city. They read:

"The friends of Albert Gowan, William McInnis, J. Raymond McPhee and Charles McPhee have received the welcome news that these men of Gloucester, who have been absent for several months, will return home within the next few days, and plans are being made to give them a royal welcome at the station upon their home-coming.

THUGS CRACK 2 SAFES; GET $1,091 AS LOOT

Thugs using similar methods cracked a safe in East Boston and another in Uphams Corner, Dorchester, today, securing $91 from the Strand Theatre in Dorchester and $1,000 in the East Boston job.

At the dry goods store of Walcott & Co., Central square, East Boston, the crackmen jimmied a rear window, knocked the safe combination off with cold chisels and a hammer and were rewarded with the $1,000.

In Dorchester the thugs are believed to have been frightened out of the theatre by the arrival of two scrubwomen.

The yeggmen on this job pried up a bolt locking a rear fire door, jimmied the office door of Manager H. Snow and, with cold chisels, knocked off the combination of the safe.

Loose in the safe were $91 in change and small bills. In a strong box reposed $820, receipts of Saturday's and Sunday's hot weather performances.

The thugs were engaged in attempting to open this when they were evidently frightened away, leaving behind two heavy hammers and a dozen cold chisels.

Special Officers Cornelius F. O'Leary and Leonard E. O'Connell of the Fields Corner station were assigned to the case.

CARONIA'S DECKS THRONGED ASLINER MISSES DESTROYER IN FOG

NEAR CRASH OFF RUM ROW

the fog, clear and heavy so close was the scudder, came this message:

"Ship off port quarter. Reverse immediately. U. S. S. Paulding alongside rum ship."

The message was hastily telephoned to the bridge. Bells in the engine room jangled.

Shivering from stem to stern, the Caronia's big screws reversed furiously.

Swinging hard over, the liner picked her way carefully by the anchored destroyer that now could be dimly seen from the bridge.

Sighs of relief went up as the narrow escape was realized.

Aboard the Paulding there was even more cause for lessening of the tension. The men aboard her were aware that a life liner had been approaching and that a crash meant merely a damaged bow for the liner but a sinking for them.

The Paulding had just captured a rum runner which had apparently crept in too close to shore during the fog.

BODY OF MISSING VET IS FOUND IN CANAL

Shelburne Falls, June 8.—The body of John H. Saunders, thirty-four, shell-shocked World War veteran, who wandered away from the home of Patrick Heery here a week ago while in a fit of despondency, was found in the sand loading from the No. 3 Dam of the New England Power Company to the No. 3 Powerhouse of the same concern. The discovery was made by a posse of men which had been searching for Saunders during the past week.

Saunders came to Shelburne Falls in the hope that the change might improve his mental condition. He is survived by a wife and one small child. The body was sent to New Britain, Ct.

TRAIN CRUSHES GORDON CUP RACE BALLOON

American Sailors Rescue the Pilots of Another Bag That Falls Into Sea

Brussels, June 8.—Narrow escapes and safe landings of the Gordon Cup balloon racers were reported today as each hour added to word of the eighteen entrants that cast off from here Sunday.

Lieutenants Flood and McCormick of St. Louis brought one of the two American entries to earth safely at Treport, France.

A train destroyed the English balloon Ilala when it landed near Boulogne, France. A message to Ernest Allais, owner of the Elsie, from his pilot, read:

"In order to avoid being driven out to sea, we came down on railroad tracks. We were not hurt but the balloon was destroyed by a train. (Signed) Captain Johnson, Major Buckley."

The American crew of the steamship Sacandaga rescued Pilot Rocha and his aide, Lopez, of the Spanish balloon Esperio, when the balloon fell into the ocean. Rocha reported their escape from death in a wireless message from the Sacandaga.

The Spanish balloon Jesus Duro landed safely at Gayeux-Sur-Mer, in northern France. The second Spanish balloon, Rivera, landed at Fiennes, France, due to a broken valve.

The French balloon, Montjon, landed safely at Boux la Basse, France.

The Italian balloon piloted by Sir Llad landed safely at Cape Lavi, France. Two of the three Spanish balloons were reported down safely at Cayeux and Phiennes, and the French Merce was down without mishap at Boux la Basse.

REVEAL NEW PLOT TO ASSASSINATE ALFONSO

Madrid, Spain, June 8 (I.N.S.).—Rumors of another attempt at Catalonia, Spain to assassinate King Alfonso were in circulation in Madrid today but the censor prohibited any Madrid newspaper publishing the facts. It was said persons of high rank had been placed under arrest at Catalonia, and that there had been eight summary executions. Alfonso arrived in Madrid from Barcelonia yesterday and was the centre of a public demonstration of welcome.

London, June 8 (A.P.).—The Spanish embassy hr today issued a statement declaring that the recent reports of attempts aginst the King and Queen at Barcelona were "merely ppart of a campaign of discredit" against Spain. Their Mapesties, the statement added, were not endangered during their stay in Catalonia.

AUTOS IN CRASH, WOMAN HURT; ONE DRIVER HELD

Seven persons escaped injury and one woman, Miss Alice Connors of Oakland street, Lexington, was cut about the head when an automobile driven by Augustus Orioli, of No. 7 Miller street, Somerville, was in collision with a machine driven by Roland L. Greer of No. 66 Franklin street, Malden, on the Lexington street boulevard, Lexington, near the Arlington line, today. One machine went through a fence at the roadside, while the other went into a ditch on the other side. Both cars were badly damaged. Orioli was arraigned in Concord Court on a charge of operating an automobile while ifitoxicated and without having his license with him. The case was continued for a week.

HUB TRIES ODORLESS GARBAGE COLLECTORS

A garbage collecting machine, claimed by the patentees to be dustless and odorless, is being demonstrated in Boston today for the enlightenment of Mayor Curley and other city officials.

The machine, built by a New York firm, was to be placed in service after today's demonstration by Public Works Commissioner Burke.

Under a new law the State Department of Health was ordered to examine the methods of the collection and disposal of garbage, ashes and waste throughout the Commonwealth, and it was as a result of it that Mayor Curley invited the demonstration of the new machine.

BANKRUPT MANUFACTURER ARRESTED IN STAMFORD

Stamford, Ct., June 8 (A.P.).—Nathan Rosenbloom, former owner of the Connecticut Shirt Company, which in February filed a petition in bankruptcy, today was arrested charged with making fraudulent financial statements to obtain credit.

It is alleged that on November 14, in making a statement to obtain credit through the Textile Banking Company and L. Erstein & Brother, Inc., of New York, he gave his assets at $108,070.57 and his liabilities at $51,555.10. It is alleged his liabilities exceeded $100,000 and he had neglected to include in his statement $51,000 he owed relatives.

Circulars Announce Band Will Greet Men Back From Prison

arrival of the train and the band will escort them to their homes.

"Friends, prepare to extend to our citizens a welcoming hand. The exact date and hour will be announced later, probably Monday or Tuesday evening."

The four men named, with five others, were captured in Maine by prohibition agents last July in the act of bringing in a load of liquor. They were tried at Portland where Gowan, McInnis and the McPhees were found guilty and sentenced to Atlanta for two years.

Recently the four men were granted a parole, and it is understood they are on their way home.

GRIMLY AWAIT COMING.

There was no information as to who was responsible for the circulars, but it was believed to be a well-known resident who is friendly to the men named.

The respectable element of the city, constituting by far the greater part of the citizens, was outraged by the attempt to extend a welcome such as is usually given only to distinguished sons or visiting celebrities.

While no official action has been taken, it is understood that the church people and prohibitionists are grimly waiting for the home-coming of the four men.

Rum Row Moves to Bay State Coast, U. S. Reports

New York, June 8 (A.P.)—Disappearance of rum row from Cape May, N. J., to Boston was officially reported to the coast guard upon the arrival at the Brooklyn navy yard of the dry navy destroyers Cassin and Jouett.

The officers reported that not one rum-runner remained in sight in the New York region, following the disappearance of the last vessel, a German steamship, from its station 60 miles south of Ambrose Light. The presence of one remaining rum ship near New London, Ct., was reported to the coast guard.

Police of the marine division, however, continued to pursue little speed boats through the narrows between the lower and upper New York Bay. In every case it was found that the boats were without liquor cargoes.

GROVERS 'MAKE UP' AT CAMP IN MAINE

everything has been forgotten, according to those in the know.

Just to give evidence as to how complete the surrender of enmity is, Phyllis Grover, daughter of Mrs. Grover, and an actress who, oddly enough, has been playing in "Tell Me More" in New York, is coming home to Lynn to be told more about the reconciliation.

In the bitter divorce action fought out in Salem, Mrs. Grover sued for divorce charging unfaithfulness, while Mrs. Grover in a cross-suit sought separate maintenance on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Grover named Paul Anatole Monte, former office clerk and self-claimed French count, as corespondent.

Ten days ago Judge Dow in Salem Probate Court, following fifteen days of actual trial, denied both petitions, cleared Mrs. Monte of the charge of unfaithfulness and awarded her $1,500 counsel fee.

And there the case hung until last Wednesday and the reunion.

Country Club at Southbridge was abandoned.

At midnight scores were seriously ill. All doctors and nurses from Webster were hurriedly summoned to the hotels and cottages around the Point where the delegates were quartered.

Among those who were reported stricken were Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., Mrs. H. W. Crawford, Mrs. Spaulding Bartlett, Mrs. Eben S. Cleveland, Mrs. Ralph K. Hubbard, Mrs. Stephen L. Archer, Mrs. O. Floyd Nolf, Mrs. Nelson Slater and Mrs. Alwyne S. Jealous, all of Webster.

Found Dead in Bed

James McCarthy, 65 years old, a longshoreman lodging at the home of Mrs. Mary Fraser, No. 158 Sumner street, East Boston, was found dead in his bed today. He had complained of the heat on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Dr. E. E. Bowen said death was caused by heart disease, superinduced by the heat.

Leo C. Driscoll, Boston Evening American Red Cross swimmer, saved Marie Fortune, twenty-year-old Roxbury girl, from drowning at Carson Beach. The rescue was effected with much difficulty owing to the woman struggling with Driscoll.

CROWDS CHEER COOLIDGE IN MIDWEST

Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg. They will leave for Washington shortly before midnight on a special train which is due to arrive at the capital Wednesday morning.

On arrival last night after a thirty-hour train ride from Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went to the Kellogg home, but not until the President clasped the grimy hands of E. W. Murphy, engineer, and W. J. Land, fireman on the engine which pulled the train into St. Paul, with the remark: "That was a fine ride."

Soldiers from Fort Snelling aided police in their effort to handle the crowd which surged toward the President as he made his way through the station. Even after he had found seclusion at the Kellogg residence, hundreds of curious folk lingered in an adjoining street.

WAVES TO CROWD.

A chant, started by a group of youngsters, "we want Coolidge," grew in volume, but failed to bring the President to the door for a speech. The crowd let out a wild cheer, however, when Mr. Coolidge appeared at a window to wave a greeting.

The Presidents' program today called for a morning of inactivity at the Kellogg home, followed by his attendance at a luncheon in Minneapolis, tendered by the directors of the centennial.

Next in order was Mr. Coolidge's appearances at the fair grounds, midway between Minneapolis and St. Paul, for his centennial speech, with the late afternoon reserved for rest, preparatory to the State House reception.

GRANDFATHER FOUGHT UNDER WASHINGTON

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Ellen Persis Bailey Winn of No. 10 Pleasant street, Arlington, who was ninety-six years old and a real granddaughter of the American Revolution. Her paternal grandfather fought under Washington. The funeral was from No. 418 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington. The Rev. Don Ivan Patch, pastor of the Orthodox Congregational Church, Arlington, officiated. Burial was in Sterling. Mrs. Winn was born in Sterling, April 25, 1829. She married Edward F. Winn, a Civil War veteran, who died twenty-four years ago. She lived in Arlington thirty years and was a member of the Ida M. Butler Rebekah Lodge and of the Woman's Relief Corps.

SHOWERS DUE IN HUB; 11 DROWNED

Glenn Powers, Mrs. Glenn Powers, Ellsworth Sullham, all of Barre, Vt., drowned at East Montpelier, Vt.

Lillian May Gray, West Lebanon, N. H., drowned in Lake Morey, Fairlee, Vt.

Nellie Fortunata, Boston, drowned in Canoble Lake, Salem, N. H.

Joseph Sabin of East Canaan, Ct., drowned in Lake Buel, near Great Barrington.

Rita E. Ryan, Providence, drowned at Oakland Beach, R. I.

James Wood, thirty, Putnam, Ct., drowned fully clothed in Bowditch Reservoir, Gloster, R. I., manner unexplained.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

Many others were rescued, including Miss Marie Fortune, twenty, of East Cottage street, Roxbury, who was saved with difficulty at Carson Beach by Leo C. Driscoll of No. 795 Columbia road, Dorchester, member of the Boston Evening American Red Cross Life Saving Corps.

Driscoll, who has more than a score of rescues to his credit, all effected through his training in the corps, was compelled to break the girl's strangle hold about his neck before he could bring her ashore on a "cross-chest carry."

The sudden descent of the mercury, which apparently had been climbing to a new high point for June, gave immeasurable relief to the dull-eyed and dragged-out greater city seeking surcease at the beaches, on front porches, in cool cellars and in the family bath tub.

NEW HOT WAVE DUE.

More than that, the cold blast from the East proved such a shock to overheated bodies that chattering teeth and shivering knees of motorists and bathers universally supplanted the drips of perspiration and sent them rushing home from highways and beaches alike.

Where hundreds spent Saturday night sleeping on the beaches in an endeavor to catch a vagrant but never-arriving breeze, the dawn of today saw the sands chilled and deserted.

It was one of those quaint New England weather changes that makes living in the Northeast corner a perpetual Summertime hot-and-cold adventure.

But beware the first soft sigh of a warmer breeze declared to be headed this way for a second siege of the Hub!

Relief came to the Middle West today from the intense heat wave. It came with a storm that caused considerable damage in several States. Buildings were demolished, basements flooded and several persons killed or injured.

Near Wray, Colo., a gale swept twenty-five miles of territory, wrecking more than a hundred buildings and injuring a score of persons.

New York had an outburst of joy over the advent of cooling winds. Tugboats in the Hudson tooted. Children danced in the streets. Folks about to retire poked their heads out windows and laughed.

SECRETARY WEEKS IN "GOOD CONDITION"

Secretary of War John W. Weeks, operated upon recently for gallstones at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, continued to show improvement today.

His physicians, Dr. Daniel Fiske Jones and Dr. F. Gorham Brigham, issued the following bulletin:

"Secretary Weeks had an excellent night and is in good condition this morning. His temperature is normal again. Pulse 85."

LEXINGTON MURDER SUSPECT INDICTED

Charles W. Jacobs of Lexington, who was indicted on May 11 for the murder of Andrew Sinoiski, Lexington farmhand, was held without bail when arraigned before Judge Nelson P. Brown in Middlesex Superior Court today.

Sinoiski's body, badly battered, was found in the woods, his pockets rifled, two days after his disappearance.

U. S. LISTS HUGE FLEET READY IN CHINA CRISIS

Washington, June 8 (A.P.)—At the request of the State Department, Secretary Wilbur has compiled a list showing what American, British, French, Italian and Japanese naval forces are within short sailing distance of the centres of disturbance in China.

Apparently the State Department wanted hte data for information purposes only, but the request was taken as reflecting the concern with which developments in China are being watched in Washington.

The American government does not intend to interfere in any factional or local disorders, but it will protect American lives and property to whatever extent becomes necessary.

Thus far the situation has been left in the hands of Admiral Washington, commanding the American Asiatic fleet, and of the Peking diplomatic corps.

"STUDENT" HIKER FOUND ASLEEP WITH REVOLVER

New Haven, Ct., June 8 (A.P.).—Thomas Sherman, who said he was a Brown University student hiking from Providence to Danbury, Ct., was arrested while asleep on a bank near Yale Bowl, charged with carrying concealed weapons. A revolver, fully loaded, was found on the blanket beside him, and another in his pocket. He also had two boxes of cartridges.

He said his grandfather had passed most of his life in Mexico, and that he always carried a revolver. For this reason, he said, he thought it was proper for him to carry a gun. Providence police telephoned that he was not listed as a Brown student.

LUMBERMAN KILLED, 2 HURT, IN CYCLE CRASH

Bennington, Vt., June 8.—David Hemminway, fifty, a lumberman, died during the night at Putnam Memorial Hospital of a fractured skull sustained when he was thrown from the side-car of a motorcycle that crashed into a wagon on the road between Bennington and Woodford.

Samuel Asbil, thirtynine, driver of the motorcycle, is at the same institution with a compound fracture of the leg, and Charles Mallory, driver of the single rig into which the motorcycle crashed, has two broken ribs.

DORCHESTER MOTHER TAKES OUT POLICY

"Sunny weather is the time to prepare for the rain," remarked Mrs. Theodore King of No. 64 Wrentham street, Dorchester, at the Head House, South Boston, as she affixed her signature to a Boston Evening American application for the $7,500 insurance policy being distributed to subscribers of the paper.

"I was urged to take out your policy," she said, "because of the financial straits into which a family of my acquaintance fell when the unimpeachable breadwinner lost his life in a street car accident a few years ago."

FOR BABY'S SAKE.

"The Boston Evening American proposal to insure its subscribers is too good to neglect," she continued, "and for the sake of my baby, Theodore, Jr., I feel I ought to insure by life against accident or death."

Hundreds of other bathers cooling off in the sweltering heat yesterday at the South Boston beach envied Mrs. King her opportunity to get a $7,500 policy for the sum of one dollar, but they were informed by the Boston Evening American representative how they, too, may become insured.

Mrs. King is one of the fairest bathers in South Boston waters and with her Theodore, Jr., has been spending the past week most comfortably in her bathing suit.

She is but one of many thousands who have responded to the appeal of the Boston Evening American to insure themselves against the frequent dangers of large cities.

15,000 EXPECTED AT QUINCY FETE

Olympia Macri May Win Her Freedom Tomorrow

15,000 TO SEE QUINCY FETE

Introductory Exercises to Be Staged Tonight in Merrymount Park

Thousands of visitors and former residents thronged Quincy today to participate in the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the settlement of the city.

The tercentenary week was opened with special services in the churches yesterday. Tonight at 8 o'clock, the introduction exercises will be held at Merrymount Park. Fifteen thousand spectators are expected.

All the great events in the history of the city of Quincy will be portrayed during the week's celebration.

Pageants, displays of fireworks and set pieces representing historical events in the city's history and a parade of 13,000 singing marchers are among the events scheduled.

SEARCHLIGHTS ON STAGE.

At Merrymount Park an immense semi-circular grandstand seating 15,000 persons has been erected while standing room has been provided for as many more persons.

Amplifiers have been placed to carry the voices of the participants of the exercises to all sections of the stands while twelve high-power searchlights will illuminate the natural stage where the exercises will be presented.

Mayor Barbour will deliver the official message of welcome to the guests at the opening of the celebration tonight and will preside over the exercises.

Herbert Parker of Lancaster has been chosen to deliver the tercentenary oration, which will be followed by a chorus of 500 voices, and then by a presentation of a living American flag in which 870 school children will stand upon the field. Then will come a band concert to conclude the night's activities.

Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock the first performance of the pageant will be presented at Merrymount Park. More than 2,000 participants, including a chorus of 500 and 200 dancers will take part.

The pageant will be given again Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights and a matinee performance Thursday. Friday night the fireworks display and a band concert will displace the pageant, and Saturday afternoon the parade under Colonel Warren E. Sweetser will be held.

THREE KILLED, MANY HURT, BY AUTOS

Three persons were killed and more than a dozen injured in automobile accidents over the week-end.

Arthur J. Clark, aged sixty, of No. 646 Main street, North Leominster, run down and killed by a truck driven by Leon W. Whitney of No. 57 Pearl street, Leominster.

Jeremiah Healy, Jr., seven, only grandson of Trial Justice Dennis Healy of Hardwick, was killed in Barre when struck by a car operated by Fred G. Couture of Gardner.

A car driven by Christopher Gallagan, a senior at Holy Cross, ran down and almost instantly killed Mrs. Caroline Shaw Hall, wife of Harold B. Hall, of No. 220 Broadway, Taunton.

Nine persons were injured at Haverhill when two automobiles crashed together on the Amesbury road between Haverhill and Lowell.

A crash between a New Bedford-Boston auto bus and an auto at Centre street and Robinwood avenue, Jamaica Plain, resulted in injuries to two persons.

Roberta Falzamb, twelve, of Jamaica Plain, was cut by splinters of flying glass.

Three students of Wellesley escaped with slight injury late when their car was badly damaged in a collision at Quincy square, Cambridge, with an inbound Dudley car.

LAST RITES SAID FOR MRS. ELIZABETH DAGGETT

There was a large attendance of men and women prominent in political and newspaper life at the funeral services today for Mrs. Elizabeth Parker Daggett, wife of State Senator Warren C. Daggett of Somerville, a newspaper man for more than thirty years.

Mrs. Daggett died Friday night at her home, 81 Electric avenue, West Somerville. Services were conducted in the chapel of Francis M. Wilson at 28 College avenue, West Somerville. Rev. George E. Heath, D. D., officiated. Mrs. Annie Laurie Heiser sang "When the Mists Have Rolled By," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "The Christians' Goodnight."

There was a profusion of floral tributes. Lee C. Kitson was in charge of the ushers. Interment was in Newton Cemetery, Newton, the city where Mrs. Daggett was born on August 8, 1866. Rev. Dr. Heath conducted committal services at the grave.

10,000 RATS ARE KILLED IN HUB

Ten thousand rats have died violent and premature deaths in Boston in the last week.

That is the estimate of J. L. Nicholes, modern Pied Piper, who is conducting a campaign against the rodents in the market district.

During the last week he visited 193 places in which rats have been frequent; baited sixty-five such places and accounted for thousands of them.

The biggest rat killed weighed one and three-quarter pounds and could whip an ordinary house cat. Most of the rats were diseased. Both rats from Norway and gray rats from Asia predominate in Boston's huge rat colony, according to the rat exterminator.

Mr. Nicholes will be in Boston for months. He expects to kill 1,000,000.

The Pied Piper of 1925 has an office in Room 950, Little Building, where information and literature pertaining to the rat menace may be obtained.

COURT SPURNS SLAYER'S PLEA TO GO TO ASYLUM

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Charles Muller of Philadelphia was held without bail for hearing next Thursday when arraigned today in the homicide court in connection with the shooting Friday of Thomas L. Leeming, Brooklyn merchant and philanthropist.

Muller refused counsel, declaring a lawyer would do him "no good," and asked that he be sent to an institution for observation. The request was refused by the court.

The prisoner was arraigned in his shirtsleeves, the affidavit charging that he had shot Leeming through a pocket of his coat, which was held as evidence.

HIGH SCHOOL TO GRADUATE 530 PUPILS

Twenty-two hundred pupils of the Somerville High School will participate in the annual class day exercises of the senior class, tomorrow, a part of the program being held in the auditorium of the school and the remainder on the spacious lawn in front of the building on Central Hill. John J. Donahue, president of the senior class, comprising 530 pupils, who is also colonel of the school regiment, will preside in the indoor exercises and as head of the school regiment, will also have charge of the outdoor exercises. The officers of the senior class are President, John J. Donahue; vice-president, Catherine Heiser; secretary, Miss Muriel H. Clark, and treasurer, Roger Van Ilerstine.

In the auditorium there will be selections by the school orchestra, with Leroy Alderman, leader, and singing by the pupils of the school. After short addresses by Headmaster John A. Avery and John J. Donahue, Thomas Kennedy will deliver the class oration and Beatrice Mann, the class poet, will read the class poem, entitled, "The Guest." The gift committee will present the class gift to the school and Headmaster Avery will accept the gift on behalf of the school. Acting Mayor John S. Smith, Jr., and Superintendent of Schools Charles S. Clark, and Dr. Harry M. Stoodley, chairman of the school committee, will occupy seats on the platform. The class ode, composed by Dean Swan, will be read by him and sung by members of the senior class.

At the outdoor exercises, John Donahue will lead all the pupils in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, after which the Class Day committee, Richard C. Warren, chairman, Miss Alice Holland, will plant the tree, which this year comes from Harvard College.

258 DEGREES AWARDED BY MAINE UNIVERSITY

Orono, Me., June 8.—The 54th annual commencement of the University of Maine was observed today by the conferring of 235 bachelors degrees and twenty-three masters and professional degrees. Commissions as second lieutenant of infantry in the reserve officer's training corps were received by twenty-one members.

Honorary degrees were conferred, as follows: Master of Arts Raymond Fellows, '98, State attorney-general; doctor of laws, Ada Louise Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, and Norman L. Bassett, associate justice, Maine Supreme Court; doctor of letters, John Livingston Lowes, professor of English at Harvard, and dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences; doctor of science, Lora Alford Rogers, '96, bacteriologist in charge of research laboratories, dairy division of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture.

STATE READY TO RULE ON SECOND TRIAL

New Haven, Ct., June 8.—Olympia Macri spent anxious hours today in Whalley avenue jail, wondering whether tomorrow's decision will mean the humiliation and strain of a second trial or whether the first degree murder indictment against her for the confessed slaying of John Bagnano, local cabaret "sheik," will be nol prossed.

State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling, who prosecuted her at her first trial, which resulted in a disagreement, is to inform Olympia's counsel, Attorney Joseph Koletsky, Tuesday whether the case will be tried again or "otherwise disposed of."

He used the quoted phrase in open court on May 26, before Judge C. L. Overy and agreed to make final decision "on or before June 9."

Mr. Alling made the statement in replying to Attorney Koletsky's arguments in support of two defense motions, one for a speedy trial and the other to admit Olympia to bail.

State's Attorney Alling contended that it was not a case for bail, but agreed to a speedy trial. He first said he would try the case at the July term of New Haven County Superior Court, but later decided to defer decision until he had an opportunity to study the situation.

Popular sentiment was that the indictment against Olympia would probably be nol prossed. Owing to a recent resolution passed by the local association, however, there also is a feeling that a new trial may result.

MOTHER OF SLAIN PASTOR IS DEAD

Jersey City, N. J., June 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Fanny B. Hall, mother of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, whose mutilated body was found beside that of Mrs. Elinor Mills, a parishioner, near New Brunswick, on September 14, 1922, died today at the Fairmount Hotel.

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

CHAPTER XLI.

FOR some inexplicable reason prisons fill up during the holidays season. I know such was the case at San Quentin and during the long Christmas I have spent in the Arizona prison the same influx took place. During Christmas week, 1914, it became necessary to make up a draft of Sing Sing prisoners for transfer to Auburn.

Previously the transfer of prisoners from Sing Sing had been accomplished much as a herd of cattle are separated. Regardless of home ties, of physical condition, of mechanical value, 46 prisoners would be "cut out" of the grey herd and shipped unceremoniously to Clinton, Great Meadow or Auburn. Sixty-six was the capacity of a railroad coach, hence the number. In cases where individual prisoners had the right or wrong kind of influence their names would be segregated from the rest at the Albany office of the superintendent of prisons and they were safe from molestation. But those without a "pull" never knew at what moment they would be roughly handcuffed and herded away.

Guards who disliked to certain prisoners, who had carried illicit traffic in drugs or intoxicants too far for safety to themselves, could by a mere word insure the transfer of this or that prisoner. If had also been claimed or, what seemed to be reliable information that certain attaches of the superintendent's office in Albany would, for a consideration, place the name of any convict on the non-transferable list.

Osborne had determined to change all this, so far as lay in his power, though that meant no inconsiderable addition to duties already plentiful. It proved an almost impossible task. The superintendent's office demanded eighty or 100 names in each transfer from which to select the final sixty-six. Osborne decided to personally interview each prisoner scheduled for transfer; and this he might have been able to do had there been only one transfer a month. But with three or four transfers every thirty days and with the superintendent's office arbitrarily rejecting lists after they had been arduously compiled and continually asking for more names, matters soon became so confused and pressing that personal interviews were not only impossible but wasted effort.

Moreover, we later learned that the commission of transfer lists could not be delegated to the regular prison officers whose useful shop artisans and others could be, and were included for spite, or to cripple the industries in order to get the warden "in bad" with the public by reducing the efficiency of the shops.

Situation Develops Into Open Rupture

It all developed into a nasty situation which finally resulted in open rupture with the superintendent's office and served to give Whitman, the governor, one of his "excuses" for lowering his colors.

In this connection it is vital to state that Osborne, before accepting the appointment, had consulted Whitman, then governor-elect, and had not only been asked by Whitman to take the post of superintendent of all the prisons in the State, but assured by Whitman that Riley, the incumbent, was not the right man for the place and that he, Whitman, intended to replace him when he assumed the governorship. In view of

FRENCH ROUTED RIFFS MASSING FOR DRIVE

Two Outposts Are Given Up After Fierce Attack by Morocco Tribesmen

London, June 8.—The Daily News has received from its war correspondent on the Moroccan front a graphic dispatch of the "Battle of Astar."

A concentration of Riffs with machine guns and artillery in the hills north and northwest of Tanut indicates the possibility of an attempt to cut off this position. The general impression is the today situation is more serious.

"The Battle of Astar," the correspondent writes, in a message which reached London by way of Fez, "and the relief of the Bluer Garrison by a mobile column, with the subsequent abandonment and destruction of both posts will live long in the memories of witnesses.

"During the battle one saw very few Riffs, but after it was over they swarmed around the ruins of the posts. I estimate that in this one attack there were at least three thousand against the French.

P. O. Receipts Drop 12 Million Year On New Rates

Washington, June 8 (A.P.)—Postal revenues instead of being boosted as contemplated in the increased postage rates which become effective April 15 are declining at the rate of more than $12,000,000 a year, it was indicated today by receipts for May.

May receipts at fifty selected postoffices totalled $27,454,861, as compared with $29,883,231 for April and $28,645,000 for March.

These offices reported a daily decrease in receipts of $50,000.

RUM CLEANUP DUE IN EAST BOSTON

A drive to clean up East Boston as far as bootleggers and home-and-fireside rum sellers are concerned will be launched this week by the police liquor squad.

The squad has just completed a drive in South Boston, where thousands of gallons of liquor was seized and many men arrested.

In one street twenty men were taken and in a six-tenement house, the head of each family was arrested.

Stephen Bluesy of No. 115 E. street, South Boston, while walking across Broadway Extension bridge, came upon the body of John Maloney, No. 163 Bolton street, South Boston, on the sidewalk apparently unconscious. He hired a

DRUNK DRIVER LAW MENACED BY COMMA

Attorney Seeks Autoist's Release on Technicality at Lowell

Lowell, June 8.—The contention that the recently enacted drunken driver law is invalid through the absence of a comma was made in local court today by Attorney Daniel J. Donahue.

The point was talked in the case of Arthur Bennell, charged with drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, having previously been convicted of this offence.

Attorney Donahue, counsel for Bennell, read to the court the paragraph in the law which, he said, was invalidated. It reads:

"Except for an offence of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor committed within a period of six years immediately following his formal conviction of a like offence in a court or magistrate of the Commonwealth, the person shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one month nor more than two years."

According to Attorney Donahue, the absence of a coma after the word "years," in the phrase "a period of six years" invalidates the law.

It was said the absence of the coma was discovered by Attorney Cornelius J. O'Neil, who is a member of the Legislature and helped draft the bill.

Judge Thomas J. Enright continued the case until Saturday for disposition.

Lowrie Tells Why He Is Dying in Prison

developments and the open hostility of both Riley and Whitman against Osborne as time went on, it is important to emphasize here just what the understanding and situation was when Osborne accepted the post.

That morning, just before New Year's, Osborne accompanied the sixty-six convicts to Harmon and made arrangements by wire for them to have coffee and food at Syracuse, a new departure in caring for prisoners while in transit from one prison to another.

He then boarded the Empire State Express at Harmon for a trip to Albany, where a meeting of prison wardens was to take place that day. Riley, the superintendent, had instituted the plan of having the four wardens meal each month.

The avowed purpose of these monthly meetings was for exchange of ideas and promotion of harmony between the four penal institutions. In reality, as will develop, these meetings did more harm than good by giving rise to opportunity for political intrigues.

In all these details and cross currents I had my part, obscure and comparatively unimportant, but none the less real to me, and serving to keep up my nervous tension. More and more I felt the need of alcoholic stimulant, and so long as I continued to use the stuff in moderation and did not get intoxicated, I persuaded myself that the ends justified the means in the effort to keep myself at high speed.

The carboy of wine was nearly gone, but I accompanied Osborne to New York frequently, sometimes to the opera—his one relaxation—and took advantage of these trips to buy bottled whiskey to keep in my room. We usually made these trips by motor, sometimes with the thermometer hovering about zero, and I found the whiskey a welcome bracer on getting back to the prison at 12:30 or 1 o'clock in the morning after a thirty mile whiz through the cold on the brick road from New York in an open car.

I did not lock up the whisky I kept in my room because Osborne, struck by the former distrust of the convict housemen, as evidenced by locks everywhere when he took charge of the place, had collected all the keys and left every bureau and closet and chest wide open.

Housemen Known to Be 'Sampling' Whiskey

Personally, I had even more reason to know that the best way to get honesty from a prisoner is to trust him, so I could do no different than follow suit, so far as locks were concerned. I knew some of the housemen were imbibing from my whiskey bottles and it worried me. I knew, if they were caught with the smell of liquor on their breaths or should one of them take too much and become tipsy it would result in disgrace and punishment, not to mention possible material for the already turntalling press.

Some papers were already showing feels antagonistic to the new prison policies and on the lookout for "proofs" that the prison administration was open to adverse criticism.

Sing Sing wardens had always afforded scandal copy for the newspapers, usually for graft or other flagrant malfeasance in office. Some of them had been indicted; others had been forced to resign. Here was one whom the politicians knew could not be "got" for any such reasons, but whom they were determined to oust. Any kind of irregularity or laxity would do for an excuse. I already know that, and I knew that the use of alcohol by myself under such circumstances, especially in such a way that prisoners might get some of it, constituted a grave menace to Osborne and to his hopes for prison betterment.

Yet I was enslaved to the point of selfishness where I couldn't sacrifice the appetite, and was willing to go on taking chances of helping bring disaster upon my friend and to the men in gray. The very fact that I stopped occasionally to reason about the situation seemed only to drive me to more drink.

Part of Long March Back to Prison Cell

Inexplicable? Yes, and all a part of the long, long march, with the muffled drums beating time, that brought me back to the portals of a prison as a law breaker and convict again.

I spent New Year's in Auburn with Osborne, visiting the prison there and learning how the new system was progressing. We returned to Sing Sing on January 2 and found an innovation had been instituted.

The men, as a "New Year's present" to Osborne, had asked Johnson, the deputy warden, that the guards be removed from the mess hall during meal times and from the prison yard during the recreation hour.

This matter had been discussed during the latter part of December, but no decision had been reached. Johnson, as acting warden during Osborne's absence, had acceded to the request of the brotherhood, and when we returned we found the men assembled for a meal with no sign of a guard anywhere; and when they passed from the mess hall to the yard the guards were also conspicuous by their absence. This was, indeed, a radical departure from long established prison custom, but it proved efficacious. The days went by and there were no fights, no disturbances. During the rest of Osborne's administration there was never a guard in the mess hall nor in the yard during recreation time. It was a concrete justification of the self-government plan.

I have mentioned Johnson — Charles H. Johnson—the deputy warden. This man had been head of an orphan asylum before coming to Sing Sing as deputy warden. He had been recommended to Osborne by O. F. Lewis of the New York Prison Association—an organization whose purpose and functions I don't believe anyone has ever succeeded in establishing.

Johnson, despite this recommendation and the fact that he had for years been an eleemosynary institution officer of the old school, apparently entered into Osborne's plans and policies with enthusiasm. He had a quiet immersion and a soft, persuasive voice; but to my mind he agreed too readily to everything suggested by his superior officer.

At first I didn't like him. I sensed latent disloyalty, or something I couldn't quite name. But with the passing of the days this dislike disappeared, lulled to sleep by his subtle flattery, which I mistook for esteem. That my first impression of the man was correct was finally established, though it took me a long time to place real credence in Tom's first intimation to me, made within a few weeks after taking office, that he wasn't "sure of Johnson's loyalty."

Aristocrats of Dogdom to Have Their Day on June 17th

Betty Alden

Ladies' Dog Club to Stage Its Annual Bench Show at the Coolidge Estate

AND NOW ALL HAIL THE ARISTOCRATS of Dogdom! Blue blooded Chow-Chows and Pomeranians, Boston Terriers and the Scottish breeds, pert Spaniels and benevolent Shepherds take centre stage, now that the horse has had his Day of Days.

CANINE PRIZE WINNERS are due for their innings on June 17, when the Ladies' Dog Club stages an annual bench show out at the J. Randolph Coolidge estate in Brookline.

PHILANTHROPY HAS ITS innings, likewise. The show will enrich the funds of the Children's Hospital by a goodly number of dollars, thereby soothing the suffering way of scores of little children now in the care of that benevolent organization.

THE SHOW GOES on all day, with ten rings, and more than six hundred entries. For instance, there are fifty Boston terriers, sixty Shepherds, twenty-five Bulls, two score Fox terriers, more than twenty West Highland Terriers and a dozen of their Welsh brethren.

DOG FANCIERS whose names spell much distinction in Society's Kingdom are entering many a famous canine. Miss Rebekah Hobbs of Beacon street, daughter of Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, is to show her "Gamin," a Brussels Griffon.

MRS. FREDERICK S. WHITWELL'S Brussels Griffon is entered, under the wing of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Howard, of Auburndale, during the protracted absence abroad of Mr. and Mrs. Whitwell.

DUDLEY P. ROGERS of the Breakneck Kennels, Danvers, with his Sealyham terriers, James H. Proctor with Pomeranians from the Radiant Kennels, and Augustus F. Goodwin of Dedham, also an owner of Sealyhams, will be out for various prizes.

MRS. BENJAMIN F. PITMAN, of Carleton street, Longwood, with her bull terrier, Mrs. Adnah Neyhart of Framingham with Chow-Chows, and Benjamin Kimball of Chestnut street and his "Camperdown Milady No." each has high hopes of carrying away the ribbon.

Lewis H. White

MISS REBEKAH HOBBS, owner of "Gamin," a Brussells Griffon entered in the Dog Show which is slated for June 17 at the Brookline estate of the J. Randolph Coolidges. The Ladies' Dog Club arranges it and the Children's Hospital benefits.

FAMOUS KENNELS and famous products thereof, of essentially the Myopia flavor, are represented. Quincy A. Shaw McKean, owner of some well-known Fox terriers, has Pride's Hill "Reputation" and "Miss Warspite" entered.

ALSO PRIDE'S HILL "Lookout," "Lady Cromfield" and By-town "Barbarian." Mr. McKean's friend and rival, Bayard Warren of Barberry Hill Kennels, is showing Barberry Hill "Home Brew," and "Tom Collins," together with "Welsh Squire."

IN ALL PROBABILITY Mr. Warren's brother-in-law, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., also a dog breeder of much renown up Myopia way, will send to the show some of his aspirants for doggish honors.

A TRIO OF out-of-towners bring Gotham's smartest flavor. They are F. Skiddy Von Shade, Westbury, Long Island, with kennels devoted to Sealyhams, Alfred Chatillon of No. 725 Fifth avenue and his Irish setter "Saint Cloud Mavourneen," and Mrs. George Hammond of Sparrow Bush, New York, with bulls.

GEORGE S. WEST presents for show honors some Airdales and Greyhounds. Gamecock "Fern Wreath" is one. Gamecock "Doughty Warrior" a second and Gamecock "Dazzling Witch" a third.

FAMOUS "CHAMPION WELWYRE," the Welsh terrier belonging to Homer Gage of Worcester, and Mrs. Frank J. Reynolds of Hanson with a string of Irish terriers join the prize-hunting throng.

NATHANIEL F. EMMONS of Hingham, owner of the Excelsioune Kennels and a string of bull terriers, takes to the show "Sea Sailor," winner of nine ribbons this Winter, "Ring Bolt" and "Bimbo."

FROM PHILADELPHIA George H. Earle, 2d, brings Black and Tan terriers, and Mrs. David Wood staff of Tuxedo Park, New York, comes over to be a judge in the matter of awards to all these aspirants for honors and distinction.

IN QUITE ANOTHER field of sport, namely tennis, a lively interest holds sway today. It centres about the Oakley Country Club and various winders of the racquet. Brilliant tennis of the championship variety was in order.

STAR PLAYERS were Mesdames William Endicott, Charles H. Blatchford (Theresa Weld) and Francis P. Sears. Miss Dorothy Bindley also occupies a high place in the tennis firmament of stars, likewise the Marchesa Ferranti, a contestant to be reckoned with.

SPORT OF THE keenest sort is on the cards all through the week, with such gifted players as the aggregation named above flashing about the courts.

HERBERT M. SEARS' handsome two-masted schooner, the "Constellation," is at anchor in Marblehead harbor, and visitors to the rockbound port, famous for its yachtsmen, are delighted at her spick and spanness.

A NEW COAT of black paint has renewed the youth of this staunch old schooner of the eighties, and old salts and landlubbers alike, all declare her the handsomest "two-stacker" along the Atlantic coast.

MR. SEARS, recently a commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club, will probably take the famous old "Constellation" on the eastward cruises of the New York and Eastern Yacht Clubs later in this season.

SHE HAS A LONG and honored history, with romance intermingled therein. Not so very long ago she served as the honeymoon craft aboard which Mr. and Mrs. David Sears (Nell White) embarked after their wedding at the Cohasset home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles J. White.

THE "CONSTELLATION" rode at anchor off shore near the Summer home of the Whites on the June day when Miss Nell White became Mrs. David Sears in the Old Meeting House on the Village Green. Following the reception the young people sailed away for a preliminary cruise before departing via steamship for Europe.

ELEPHANTS AND BIG TOP AGAIN IN TOWN

400 Wagons Haul Ringling, Barnum & Bailey Show to Sullivan Square

Out at the new Sullivan Square Show Grounds, "John L. Sullivan," who is eighty-five years old, but doesn't show it, picked up an 18-inch stick with his trunk and coyly reached around to scratch his back.

"It's been a hard morning," he grunted. "I've pushed these circus wagons long enough. There'd oughta be a law against making a boxer like me shove wagons. Even if I am eighty-five years old, I could show Jack Dempsey a few things."

The big elephant let out a bellow to emphasize his remarks. He was the first "boxing elephant" to perform in this country. Before that, an enterprising showman had greased his tough hide and soaked him in peroxide to exhibit him as a "white elephant." But now his real color has returned and his performing days are passed. He is's the other forty-two of his brothers and sisters (no can count 'em yourself today) do the performing while he shoves wagons and munches hay.

"John" arrived in Boston early today on one of the four trains which brought the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined circus to Boston for a week's stay. The paraphernalia was hauled in 400 wagons to the Sullivan Square grounds, and erection of most of the 32 tents was under way at once.

Everything came with the Big Show, including the extra properties that now, for the first time, make it a sure-enough five-ring circus. Besides were the battalions of horses (350 of them performers), the "big-tops" 800 men and women stars, and strings of cages housing wild beasts to the tune of a thousand or more.

It is estimated that 11,452 kids, from 6 to 80, helped get the show on the new lot at Sullivan Square.

CHAMPION RIDER READY FOR ACT

May Wirth, world's greatest bareback equestrienne, receiving the finishing touches to her toilette before the ring master's whistle blows for her act with Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey's circus at the Sullivan square lot.

ENGLISH LOVE WINS IN FILM AT FENWAY

Mary Brian and Alice Joyce Score Hit in "The Little French Girl"

Ever since the "movies" began to "move" things, many old notions have died miserable and unmourned deaths. The latest demise is the famous French reputation for love-making. So long celebrated in song and story, the Gaul surrenders to the Anglo-Saxon as Lover De Luxe, or however the world title reads for this event. At any rate, this is what happens in the photoplay "The Little French Girl," which began its week's showing at the Fenway Saturday.

Based on the popular novel of the same name, the story makes a good "marriage drama" for the screen and, incidentally, provides Alice Joyce with a somewhat vamps role and the handsome Neil Hamilton looks his manliest.

Mary Brian as the little French girl, in order to escape the sophistication of her dashing mama's home in France is sent to the staid home of the Brothers in England with the hope that she may eventually be married to some safe and sane English title. Fate, however, and the wagging tongue of the gossiper betray the girl's somewhat questionable past and back she goes to La Belle France.

The gay life and local "men-about-town" at home fail to make the proper impression and the young lady, though she dances and prances most prettily with them, look forward with no joy to wedded bliss until the timely arrival of our English hero. Then the English "melod" has its inning and love's young dream triumphs mightily.

BRIGANDS LEAD IN REVOLT ON GREEK ISLE

Naval Forces Landed and Martial Law Is Declared on Samos

Athens, Greece, June 8 (A.P.).—A Greek naval detachment has been landed and martial law declared to suppress an uprising on the Island of Samos, off the Asia Minor coast.

The movement is headed by the Pafindes brothers, brigands, who took refuge on the island to escape arrest. Their first move was to seize the government buildings, deport the authorities and cut the lines of communication.

Civilian officials, soldiers and gendarmes expelled from Samos by the insurgents, declare the latter number about 450, including some released prisoners.

Delayed messages giving details of the uprising said that before the landing of Greek forces a band of sixty rebels had disarmed a small garrison, opened the Samos prison and proclaimed the island's independence. The dispatch said the rebels had few weapons and the population generally seemed hostile to the movement.

Trained Tailor, War Veteran, Seeks Work

The Boston Chamber of Commerce is again seeking jobs for rehabilitated veterans. These men have been trained under the supervision of the Veterans' Bureau. They are not mendicants—our seekers of charity but ready to turn in a good day's work for a day's pay.

No. 743 served in the 39th Infantry, is 26 years old, single and lives in Boston. He is an experienced tailor who can give production.

If you can use this man communicate with the secretary, special committee on the employment of rehabilitated veterans, Boston Chamber of Commerce.

BELGIAN DEBT ENVOYS DUE IN U. S. IN JULY

Washington, June 8 (A.P.).—An official commission appointed by the Belgian government to negotiate with American authorities for the settlement of the war debt owed the United States will visit this country in July.

The commission will be headed by former Premier Theunis and the head of the Bank of Belgium.

TESTIMONIAL TO B'NAI B'RITH ACTORS

Amos Lodge and Auxiliary to Banquet Those Who Aided in Show

In appreciation for their assistance in making the annual show, "Miss Cinderella," a success, the members of the cast and those who aided on the various committees will be tendered a testimonial dance, dinner and concert by Amos Lodge and Amos Auxiliary B'nai B'rith in Beacon Hall tonight.

Entertainment will be furnished by the stars of the show including Venette Brody, Ada Shlager, Dorothy Milen, Anna Lappin, Joseph Katzeff and Harry Miller. Miss Brody not only has assisted in B'nai B'rith theatricals, but has served it in the directing capacity as well. She is associated with an amateur production in New York City now, directing its rehearsals.

Some seventy-five to 100 participants of the show will be feted and dined this evening, after which general dancing will be enjoyed.

Cambridge Jews dedicated their new synagogue with impressive ceremonies and installed Rabbi S. Z. Baum as their new spiritual leader.

An automobile parade, with traditional folk and patriotic music, urging the throngs on to the Tremont street temple, presented a colorful and interesting spectacle. The dedication was also the celebration of the foundation of the 1,000th Jewish house of worship in New England.

Addresses were made by Mayor Quinn, Rabbi Krieger, Rabbi Meyer Berlin, president or Mizrachi; Rabbi Rose of Cambridge and Abraham Alpert, Jewish editor. The sisterhood, represented by President S. L. Klashman, Mrs. S. W. Flax, vice-president; Mrs. Jennie Sugerman, treasurer, and Mrs. Nellie Bandler, secretary, arranged the banquet and entertainment which followed the solemn ceremonies.

Purity, Quality, Cleanliness.

These three factors alone justify a place of distinction on your table for Hood's old fashioned Ice Cream. In addition to these we offer the most delightful line of fine flavors and combinations. You can always find just what you want in

HOOD'S old fashioned ICE CREAM

There's a Hood dealer in your neighborhood and he's a good man to know.

H. P. HOOD & SONS
Distributors of Hood's Milk for more than 75 years.

ICE CREAM SEASON IS WITH US

Be Sure the Source of Your Supply Is Pure

This is certainly ice cream weather and I do wish that all of you could have gone with me through the ice cream plant of the H. P. Hood Company in Cambridge, one day last week, so that you would be as sure as I am that when you purchase Hood's Ice Cream you are purchasing a product made from the finest of materials under absolutely sanitary conditions.

I watched every step in Ice Cream making, even to the filling of the famous "Hoodsies." These, by the way, are packed untouched by hands. Each little cup is set in a revolving machine, while the rich ice cream is fed into the cups from a glass lined container.

Even the half pint boxes are packed entirely by these almost human machines. I saw them make the fancy box, too, which I told you about last week. They are so popular for weddings now, and come in all sorts of delightful fruit and flower shapes. When served on a bed of spun glass, which the Hood Company also furnishes, they are indeed the finishing touch to the smartest wedding. I am sure that there are many of our Club Members who have daughters who are becoming June brides, and I will be glad to tell you more about these attractive ices and the very reasonable prices at which they can be purchased. I'll be glad also to send you suggestions for the rest of the wedding refreshments.

Next week I want to tell you more about my trip, which included the Hood plant at Lynn where milk is pasteurized and bottled and where butter is made and ice cream, too.

The pasteurization was particularly interesting. I had to watch it through a plate glass window as no one is permitted in the Pasteurizing Room who has not been passed on by a physician, their clothing sterilized and every possible precaution taken to keep out any inquisitive germs.

I gathered together some interesting literature on Hood's Certified Milk for your baby, their cream and their Grade A Pasteurized Milk, and I am sure you will find some very interesting facts in these leaflets. A postage stamp and a note addressed to me will bring them to you.

SALAD HINTS

Ready Prepared Dressings Time and Money Savers

What is any more tempting these first hot Summer days than a crisp green salad served maybe with some cheese straws and iced ginger ale?

Perhaps because you have some hard working men folks in your family you feel that they should have heartier fare than salads, but really very substantial salads can be made with little work that will be quite as nourishing and far more healthful than steaks and chops when the mercury is standing on tiptoe.

Time was when the most careful housewives felt it their duty to make their own salad dressing, and this meant that it was just about as much work to make a salad as to prepare a roast of beef. Nowadays, however, we can buy our mayonnaise dressing already prepared, secure in the knowledge that it is just as carefully made as if we ourselves prepared it in our own kitchen.

Take Doraco Mayonnaise, for instance. I can assure you that this is one of the finest salad dressings on the market, made from large brown henny eggs, the best of salad oil and vinegar and high quality spices. It will keep fresh and sweet in your ice chest for a surprising length of time, that is if your family doesn't discover it is there and use it up on their evening sandwiches for the young lunch with Doraco Mayonnaise as the filling, and if you take along a jar of the dressing and scrap up your wilted lettuce in a cheese cloth bag, when you get to the picnic grounds you can have a crisp fresh salad in no time.

Whipped half and half with whipped cream, Doraco makes an ideal dressing for fruit salads. It also serves as a foundation for the famous Thousand Island dressing. For Russian dressing, all you need to add is a little Chili sauce, a few drops of Worcestershire and chopped pickles or chives.

To make delicious tartar sauce add one-third tablespoon of chopped pimiento, capers, onion, parsley and a little bit of chopped onion to the Doraco Mayonnaise.

Keep a jar of Doraco in your ice chest at all times for it is only the work of a moment and in less time than it takes to tell you can have a cool, nourishing, appetizing salad that is fit to set before a king.

Those not acquainted with Doraco Mayonnaise dressing if you are not familiar with it already, it is manufactured by the Arthur E. Dorr Company, Boston, who offer a new kitchen utensil in their ad. I know you will want many of them.

CHOOSE YOUR GROCER CAREFULLY

Consider Service and Quality

If you are one of the many people who, while they recognize that the S. S. Pierce Stores stand for the best in quality and service, believe that they also stand for high prices, I wish that you would do what I did this week, and that is, take one of their price lists and check it by the price list of any other grocer. You'll be surprised to find that in no case is S. S. Pierce higher in price for the same quality of article!

The only difference is that S. S. Pierce demands that every food product sold in their store shall come up to a certain standard of quality. You will not find corn at 9c nor peas at 12c, but you will find peas at 19c of a quality which I am sure can't be equaled anywhere at the same money.

What the S. S. Pierce Company is doing is supplying people with good food in abundant variety at fair prices and including the convenience and courtesies that are usually known as "service."

Over 20,000 families in Greater Boston are ordering their supplies by telephone from the S. S. Pierce Company. The firm maintains a special telephone department of capable, trained salespeople who make ordering by telephone a pleasure; or you can have your preferred salesman call upon you at your home regularly. Groceries are delivered in the S. S. Pierce Company's own automobiles to homes in about forty cities and towns in Greater Boston and they will prepay express charges on orders of reasonable size in fifty or sixty additional towns in Eastern Massachusetts; their Mail Order Department handles orders in all of New England and indeed, the United States.

The thrifty housewife can obtain at S. S. Pierce's just the brand of goods she wants at the price she wants to pay. You can purchase fancy creamery tub butter at 51c a pound or the best quality of print butter if you prefer that. Excellent coffee, the Stanzalone brand, can be had for 47c a pound, or you can have one of the finest blends in the world, Mocha and Java, at 65c a pound.

Pierce's Red Label Vegetable Soup at 15c is the best of its kind, I believe, and their Epicure Grape Juice is a wonderful value at 35c a quart. Real fresh Hennery Eggs are 45c a dozen—where can you do better? I am sure that these few items will show you that when you buy at Pierce's you are getting the finest quality, perfect service, and the lowest prices for food of the high standard that all wise housekeepers demand.

I have a number of copies of the S. S. Pierce Book, "The Epicure," which not only contains some splendid recipes and menus, but a complete price list of the goods they carry. Shan't I send you a copy?

GIFT SUGGESTIONS

China Shop Solves Most Gift Problems

Each mail brings me requests for suggestions about weddings; about gifts and especially about wedding refreshments, what to serve, and how to serve it.

Just one block away from Summer street, at 33 Franklin street, I know you will get some very helpful suggestions from the show windows of the Jones, McDuffee & Stratton Company where a table is displayed showing the proper setting for the wedding breakfast. Every detail is correct and with very little expense you can have your wedding breakfast table, for your daughter's equally attractive.

Step inside of the store and see all the dainty table appointments and note the attractive prices at which they can be purchased. The foreign buyer for Jones, McDuffee & Stratton has just returned from abroad and ships are coming in every day bringing the beautiful things he has gathered together on the other side.

You can come to this store and be sure that the wedding present that you purchase will not be duplicated in tens or hundreds, and yet the prices of these lovely things are not beyond the average pocketbook.

Be sure to look over the attractive display of iced tea sets; note the unusual shapes in the salad sets, too. The new glass salad plates are especially attractive. Ice cream sets also make popular and acceptable gifts, and speaking of gifts, don't forget to visit the Gift Corner in the balcony.

Here gifts are arranged in delightful variety on special tables. Everything on one table at 75 cents and so on up to the $10 table. Right in this Gift Corner is the solution of most of your problems, for even the most inexpensive piece has been carefully chosen, is in exquisite taste and will be something that the bride will always treasure and that will be a credit to the giver.

To my mind, the store of Jones, McDuffee & Stratton is one of the brightest spots among Boston's best shops, and I hope that all of our club members will drop in there regularly. It's a profitable habit.

MALONEY FIGHT WAGER LOSER KILLS SELF

Found Dead on Mother's Grave; Lost $1,000 on Bout. Landlady Says

Howard Arnold, sixty-four, well known to the sporting fraternity of this city, was found dead yesterday in Marlewood Cemetery, Marlboro, his body stretched beside the grave of his mother.

According to Mrs. Reuben Leonard of No. 4 Allen street, Marlboro, where he boarded, Arnold had been dependent because he had lost his savings on Maloney, who lost to Sharkey on a foul last Friday night at Braves Field.

Arnold, it is understood, wagered $1000 on Maloney to win.

AMERICAN AIR FLIGHT LAUDED BY EX-GOV. COX

Former Governor Says Test Will Show Mettle of Bay State Guardsmen

Channing H. Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, who, while Governor of Massachusetts, signed the Boston Airport Bill, making possible the present landing field at East Boston, has endorsed the Boston Evening American's Prize Flight contest on June 17.

Former Governor Cox is one of those far-sighted citizens who knows how important aircraft will be in the defense of this country in case of invasion by a European foe as well as the importance of airplanes in the near future in commerce.

The former Governor of the Bay State is adding his word of praise to those of Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and others, says he believes the forthcoming flight contest "should interest all citizens with imagination." The statement of former Governor Cox follows:

By CHANNING H. COX

The Boston Evening American's Prize Flight contest on June 17, the 150th anniversary of Bunker Hill Day, will undoubtedly be a note in traveling event, both to the public and the Massachusetts National Guard officers taking part.

This contest will provide an opportunity to demonstrate just what the aviators of our National Guard can do. I understand that the committee in charge of the flight details will assign tasks to the contestants similar to those presented in time of war. The successful completion of these assignments should be of vital interest to the public generally as well as the men who execute them.

The importance of Boston as an airport in time of war is known to the average man in the street because of the fact that this city is one day's sail nearer Europe than New York. In case of invasion by a hostile fleet, the Hub would naturally occupy an important place in the plans of the invaders.

The fact that Boston is much nearer Europe by air will without doubt be of vast importance to this city when travel across the Atlantic by aircraft becomes an every-day occurrence.

Boston's position on the map makes it a vital place in either war time or peace time aircraft activities. The forthcoming prize flight contest of the Boston Evening American should interest all citizens with imagination.

The list of patronesses thus far who will serve in connection with the Prize Flight are:

Mrs. Thorndike D. Howe, Mrs. S. Parker Bremer, Mrs. Horace Morrison, Mrs. L. Vernon Briggs, Mrs. Edward L. Logan, wife of Major-General Logan, Mrs. Channing H. Cox, wife of the former Governor of Massachusetts; Mrs. A. J. Jones, wife of Lieutenant Jones of U. S. Army Air Service and office in charge on duty with the Massachusetts National Guard; Mrs. Clarence P. Edwards, wife of Major General Edwards; Mrs. Timothy Ainsworth, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, Mrs. R. H. Bradlee Cooper and Mrs. Nathaniel Ayer.

ROADHOUSE RAIDED, ALLEGED GAMBLERS HELD

There was a wild scramble in the secluded roadhouse known as the "Old Kent Place," off the Middlesex turnpike in Burlington, when a squad of State and Woburn police charged into the midst of an alleged gambling game.

Two of the 21 men captured dashed out of the house, but became mired in a swamp and shouted for the police to save them. They were rescued and brought back to the house. Police seized $35 in cash on the tables, cards, dice and other alleged gambling paraphernalia.

A HOME PAPER FOR 8 PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, MONDAY, JUNE 8, 1925

SECOND SECTION

How the Second Army Was Whipped Into Shape in a Rush to Be Ready for the Great Allied Drive

TOO much talk, too much expectation and too little realization, was the greatest American error in the war, General Bullard writes in today's installment of his memoris. He also describes the hasty organization of the Second Army

TOUL, October 14, 1918. (Diary.) "Came by auto with my two aides, Captains Shirley and Witherspoon, via Bar-le-Duc and Ligny, to this place October 12. I passed at Souhaimes la Grande the second echelon of my (now old) 3d Corps headquarters to tell the officers good by and to thank them for their loyal efforts. Really, they had not done badly. They began three months ago with a very imperfect organization that functioned very roughly and bunglingly. Today it functions well.

"I stopped a few moments at 1st Army headquarters at Soulily to see our commander in chief, General Pershing. He informed me that he would give up the command of the 1st Army, and he intimated that he would form a group of armies, of which General Liggett would command the first and I the second; that he had found it necessary to quit the direct command of an army, as it forced him to neglect greater interests. I thanked him for the mark of his confidence in naming me to this new command.

Too Much Talk Greatest Fault

"On arriving at Toul I found the 2d Army about half organized. It has two corps now being largely French) and some 17,000 army troops. The chief of staff, Brigadier General Stuart Heintzelman, I have known for a long time, and in every way he suits me. He is disciplined and considerate altogether.

"But I found no army artillery, or even artillery staff. However, I have started on the staff with a good chief, Major General Lassiter, one of the best artillerists that I know.

"In trying (Diary, October 15) to supply deficiencies in the Second Army, I find the usual defect, to wit, too much talk, a great deal of expectation and too little realization. This has been the great American error on the war). We have talked at long range. We have filled the air with loud words about things we are going to do. To it a characteristic of us Americans to make a 'blow' about everything that we do" Before we did anything toward getting into the war we talked it out over the world that we were going to have more and bigger guns and more and more ammunitions and more ships and more and swifter aeroplanes, submarines and chasers, and more and deadlier gas, and more and bigger and deadlier everything than any or all the other belligerents. It is not much of an exaggeration to say that we made good only on the men; the gas came too late and the aeroplanes and many of the other things did not come at all.

"I was again encountering in the Second Army the difficulties which I had encountered in the composition of the First Division last December. I was having my requests answered in futures rather than in presente. But my requests now were in terms of tens of thousands where last year they were in hundreds.

Allies Press Germans Back

"I see very clearly (diary) that an army is a very much larger thing than a corps. Indeed, a single staff section is as large as a corps staff entire." In its very start this army was six times as great as the division which I was then commanding, and yet the army was in its mere beginning.

"I am not superstitious, but my health, vigor and good feeling, so reduced under the awful neuritis in my right arm from April until September, was now returning that I thought, with some little misgiving of my same good feeling on starting on a like new mission six months ago, the day before the said neuritis literally knocked me down. But my misgivings were never justified. My health was returning. It was fortunate, because all my available strength was needed in the work of the formation and preparation of this army for a heavy attack which I knew it would soon be called upon to make."

"Soon" in those days really meant what it said. The Allies were pressing the enemy with all their might to bring the war to a conclusion. The second army could not long be left to form and train itself at leisure. This army I found lying between the Moselle at Pont-a-Mousson and the Meuse near Verdun, connecting here with the First American Army.

After the reduction by the Americans of the St. Mihiel salient about a month ago, the American troops left upon this spot had been preparing for an American advance in the general direction of Metz. Our railroad, roads and other communications were being brought across the old No Man's Land in the German salient of St. Mihiel to connect with the corresponding old German communications leading into the enemy's

CIVILIANS TO 'ENLIST' JULY 4

To Be Called on Defense Day to Fill Ranks of Military Units

Washington, June 8 (A.P.).—Directions to corps area commanders that patriotic demonstrations be made the main feature of muster day ceremonies July 4 are contained in a comprehensive circular of instructions sent out by the War Department to the nine area commanders.

The commanders are directed to confer with State and municipal authorities and local committees in order to assist in every way in arranging the demonstrations.

As was the case in the original defence test last year, details of the muster and of the patriotic celebrations are left entirely to the local communities. The regular army personnel is under instructions to "give the impetus and direction necessary to insure a successful defence test."

A new feature is the instruction to army personnel to seek the appointment of local muster committees through the co-operation of civilian authorities. The committee is to represent the State and local agencies which would be used in procurement under either a voluntary or selective system," to the men to fill up the ranks of the various components of the army of the United States assigned to each locality.

"The functions in this respect should be demonstrated in each community by filling the ranks of the organizations stationed in that vicinity, the personnel for which may be secured through invitations to civilians of military age to serve voluntarily with specified units only during their participation in pageants and patriotic demonstrations," the orders state.

"Such action may not be expedient in some localities and should not be undertaken in any territory without the approval of the local muster committee."

SOVIETS PAY SLAYERS OF CHINESE, IS CHARGE

Shanghai, June 8.—Charges that the Soviet government paid Chinese Communist leaders $5,000 for the life of each student killed in the Shanghai riots were made today in circulars distributed all over the city by Chinese anti-Communists.

Chinese factions opposed to the Communists, while deploring the shootings which claimed the lives of a score of Chinese students, and demanding apologies and indemnities, asserted the Moscow government engineered the tragedy. The circulars urged immediately action to overthrow the Chinese communists.

Meanwhile, it was reported 2,000 Chinese troops, including Russians and members of the Feng-Tien, were en route to Shanghai from Peking to cope with possible disorders.

100 DROWNED IN MEXICAN RIVERS

Mexico City, June 8 (A.P.).—Special dispatches from Vera Cruz report that more than 100 persons have been drowned and several hamlets destroyed in the isthmus region of Tehuantepec by overflowing of the Tehuantepec and Porros rivers. The waters swept away whole families, their livestock and other possessions. Large trees were uprooted, adobe houses levelled and crops ruined. San Blas, a suburb of the city of Tehuantepec, was reported almost destroyed.

Dispatches from Juchitan, near the Gulf of Tehuantepec, say the waters are six feet above normal and still rising. Railway traffic has been cut off, with bridges and tracks washed away.

Women to Have Equal Part in Defense Day

Washington, June 8.—The women of America are expected to participate in the national defense mobilization on July 4 on the same terms as the men, Acting Secretary of War Dwight Davis announced today.

In a letter to Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Davis declared the War Department "stands squarely behind the maintenance of the traditional part women have played in the defense of America ever since those days of the struggling colonies."

CRABTREE WILL BATTLE OPENS ON JUNE 29

Hearings on the Lotta Crabtree will contests will begin on June 29 and continue daily until all the evidence is in, according to an agreement reached today in Suffolk Probate Court.

Former Judge Frederic H. Chase was before Judge Prest as counsel for Judge William C. Wait of the Supreme Court and General Charles Edwards, named administrators of the estate of Miss Crabtree.

He appeared in support of his motion that appearances of contestants be stricken from the docket on the ground that they are not heirs-at-law or next of kin of Miss Crabtree and also that a time be fixed for a hearing on all matters before the court.

JURY TRIAL URGED.

Sherman L. Whipple, representing Mrs. Ida May Blankenberg of Oklahoma, claiming to be a daughter of the former actress, and Charles H. Cockburn of Los Angeles, who says she is a niece, suggested that the motion to be considered was that of jury issues in behalf of Mrs. Blankenberg. He said there were extraordinary circumstances which would entitle Mrs. Blankenberg to have a jury pass on her kinship.

Attorney Whipple also suggested the court might feel embarrassed because of the published statements in the newspapers made by the special administrators, one of whom is a member of the public courts. He said the statements might tend to predetermine the case.

Judge Prest said he should not be embarrassed in deciding any question which might be presented to him, as stated he would hear motions for jury issues at 3 p. m. Thursday. It was then agreed on the date for the begining of the general hearing.

APPEAL INDICATED

To expedidate final conclusion Attorney Whipple agreed that appeals from rulings and decrees of Judge Prest should all go together to the Supreme Court.

Attorney Whipple then brought up the matter of an inventory, which he said had not been filed, although three months have passed. He said the special administrators would not permit counsel for the contestants to examine papers and that information of benefit to them might be contained in the inventory.

Judge Prest agreed that an inventory should be filed in the usual way, but said the administrators could not be expected to include papers and other documents.

It was then announced by Judge Chase that the inventory had been in preparation for some time and would soon be filed.

USE OF BACTERIA IN WARFARE FORBIDDEN

Geneva, June 8 (A.P.).—The use of bacteria in warfare was outlawed by the International Arms Conference. An amendment was adopted placing bacteria with poison gas on the list of forbidden war methods.

The amendment to include bacteria in the protocol of the conference for the limitation of traffic in arms and munitions was supported by the American delegation.

GORGEOUS CEREMONY PLANNED

More Than 2,000 Invitations Out for Nuptials of Wealthy Girl

Holderness, N. H., June 8.—The most gorgeous and costly wedding in the history of New Hampshire will be solemnized at Mirador, the Summer estate of the Edwards family, on June 27, when Miss Helen Hope Edwards of Huntington, W. Va., heiress to millions, will become the bride of Joseph E. Bradley, comparatively poor Cambridge youth.

Sherry's in New York has been engaged to prepare the wedding feast, while the Waldorf-Astoria will furnish the music for the wedding and the reception which will follow.

The wedding plans call for the expenditure of a small fortune. Guests from all parts of the country will attend the ceremonies.

The bridegroom to be is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1917, and is twenty-nine years old. He is the son of John W. Bradley of No. 17 Maple Avenue, Cambridge. He is employed in the purchasing department of the Pacific Mills, with offices at No. 24 Federal street, Boston.

BRIDE AN HEIRESS.

The bride-to-be and her brother James are the sole heirs to the Edwards millions. The family is one of the wealthiest in West Virginia, and the wedding, the first that has ever occurred in this generation, is to be staged with a lavish hand and without thought of cost.

One of New York's leading modistes has been engaged to prepare not only the trousseau of the bride but the gowns of the six bridesmaids as well. More than 2,000 invitations to the wedding have been sent out.

After the wedding the couple will take up their residence in a modest cottage in one of the Boston suburbs.

The Edwards family is socially and politically prominent in West Virginia and counts a host of friends in official life in Washington.

While in Harvard Bradley was a member of the second varsity football team in 1914 and was a member of the Harvard track team as a runner. He was a member of the Pi Eta Society, and after leaving college was principal of a school for a time.

APPROVES SON-IN-LAW

The bride's father, who started in life a poor young man, and is now said to be one of the wealthiest manufacturers in the United States, heartily approves of his daughter's choice. "I might travel the world around and not find a better young man for a son-in-law," is the way he expressed his approval of Bradley.

The bride has selected six of her schoolmates to be bridesmaids. They are Miss Pauline Webster of Camden, N. J.; Miss Frances Gore of Washington, D. C.; Miss Ruth Rhodes of Kansas City; Miss Louise Sullivan of Pittsburgh; Miss Helen Walburne of Huntington, W. Va., and Helen Brown of Philadelphia. Miss Annie Stewart of Philadelphia will be maid of honor and Mrs. Mercedes Jacobs of Huntington, W. Va., an aunt of the bride, will be matron of honor.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS.

The father, who was the Republican candidate for the United States Senate from West Virginia last November, is a personal friend of General Edwards and of John W. Davis, who was the Democratic candidate for President last Autumn. He has invited friends from all over the country and from Canada to attend the ceremony, which will be performed in a rustic arbor covered with red rambler roses.

HAPPY COMRADES ON TRIP AROUND WORLD

Mrs. E. B. Sydney-Smith, passenger arriving here today on liner Winifredian. She is shown with her pet dog "Puddin," her companion on a round-the-world voyage. According to his mistress "Puddin" has proved a good sailor on her first globe-trotting trip.

SPELL CAST BY GYPSY WOMEN

Man and Wife Get Warrants for Pair After They Are Fleeced in Sleep

Springfield, June 8.—Wrapped in scarfs and capes of many colors and crowned with scarlet bandeaux, two handsome gypsy women appeared last Friday at No. 785 Worthington street and prevailed upon Mr. and Mrs. Arcade Racine to have their fortune told.

Racine is a solid householder and a trade deliver. But he believed in fortune tellers.

The rest of the story was told at the police station today, when husband and wife appeared and swore out warrants for the arrest of "Jane and Mary Doe."

BOTH HYPNOTIZED.

Racine told the police that, instead of telling his fortune, one of the women hypnotized him.

She drew him into the living room, he said, kept passing her hand in front of his face and never let him escape her peculiar, hypnotic gaze. She kept repeating over and over:

"We must have money. You must give us money tomorrow."

When the spell broke, he said, he went out to the kitchen and found his wife pale and ready to faint. She told him the other gypsy had made the same suggestion to her.

The Racines said nothing Friday night and Saturday the gypsy women returned. Husband and wife are not very clear what happened, but the net result was that the gypsy ladies eventually went away, taking with them $200 of Racine's cold cash, his wife's coat, worth $100; five rings worth $160, and some clothing.

OTHERS ARE VICTIMS.

The warrants charge the nomad women with the hypnotic eyes with grand larceny.

The police say that despite certain fantastic features of the story told by the Racines, they believe them.

Others have complained recently of gypsies who told their fortunes told, only to awaken later with confused thoughts, headaches, and empty pocketbooks.

There is a tribe of gypsies camped at Indian Orchard.

THREE YOUTHS HELD IN BRIDGEWATER ROBBERY

Brockton, June 8.—Roger O. Carbone, twenty-three, of No. 822 Main street; George H. Burgeson, seventeen, of No. 730 Main street, and John W. Coughlin, twenty, of No. 61 South street, Bridgewater, each was held in $5,000 today for hearing Tuesday on a charge of highway robbery. The youths were arrested following a holdup of George W. N. Jones, an East Bridgewater milkman, who was beaten and robbed of $40.

ARCHAEOLOGIST C. D. CURTIS DIES

Rome, June 8 (A.P.).—Charles Densmore Curtis, formerly of Boston and for sixteen years professor of archaeology in the American Academy in Rome, died here today of pneumonia.

Mr. Curtis was born in Augusta, Me., October 16, 1876, a son of Charles Alphonson and Blanche (Densmore) Curtis. He was graduated from Pomona College, Claremont, Cal., in 1900, and received a degree of master of arts from the University of Colorado in 1901.

Mr. Curtis was a member of the American expedition for the excavating of Cyrene, Tripoli, in 1910-11. He was made a fellow of the American Academy in Rome in 1912, serving until 1915, and later became associate professor of archaeology at the academy.

He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and a corresponding member of the Pontifical Academy in Rome and the Union Club of Rome and Authors Club of New York. He was the author of numerous articles on archaeological topics. Mr. Curtis was unmarried.

CREMATION FOR BODY OF VANCE THOMPSON

Nice, France, June 8 (A.P.).—The body of Vance Thompson, American novelist who died here Friday, will be taken to Marseilles for cremation and the ashes sent to Los Angeles, it was announced today. Otis Glazebrook, American consul, opened a note which had been left by Mr. Thompson, giving instructions for this procedure.

Mr. Thompson's death was caused by embolism, the obstruction of blood circulation by a clot.

HOPE FOR LOEB TO REGAIN HIS SANITY

Joliet, Ill., June 8 (I.N.S.) With slight improvement in Richard Loeb's physical condition noted today, Joliet prison physicians advanced the hope that his mind will become normal again.

He was, however, still strapped to his bed, and constantly under guard of two men.

Again, after the examination of Loeb, co-slayer of little Bobby Franks, the physicians ridiculed the intimation that the millionaire youth is feigning insanity. They expressed themselves more convinced than ever that his mental aberration, characterized by a desire to do violence on all persons within his presence, is the result of the attack of measles.

ABYSSINIA VICTORIOUS IN FIGHT WITH LEAGUE

Geneva, June 8 (A.P.).—Abyssinia, the newest member of the League of Nations, has won her struggle against being included in the prohibitive zone of Africa where the importation of arms will be subject of special restrictions under the convention now being drafted by the International conference here.

Abyssinia argued it would be humiliating for her to be classed with some of the more backward sections of Africa and is excluded from the barred zone provided she makes accords with the interested powers to prevent gun-running into neighboring colonies.

Egypt also has been placed outside the barred zone. The Persian Gulf is included in the forbidden maritime zone.

3 BIG LINERS ARRIVE HERE SAME DAY

With three big transatlantic passenger liners steaming up through the mists of Boston Harbor today in a procession, the old port took on an aspect which reminded port officials of the prosperous days of Boston's shipping, before the war.

The Leyland liner, Winifredian, from Liverpool led the procession, docking at the Leyland wharf in East Boston. She was quickly followed by the new Italian liner, Leonardo da Vinci, on her maiden voyage from Mediterranean ports, and the White Star liner, Celtic, from Liverpool and Queenstown. Both docked at the Commonwealth Pier, South Boston.

Charles, E. Lauriat, the Boston bookseller, who has been in Europe on business returning on the Celtic, brought back a historic document which he will publish soon. It is the log of the ship Jesmond, which brought colonists to Virginia in 1768. The following year she returned with another shipload of adventurers and was wrecked, but all hands were saved.

The log was kept by Captain Houghton, master of the Jesmond.

Other passengers on the Celtic for Boston were B. M. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crosby of West Newton, Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic and Miss Ethel Sedgwick.

Among the passengers of the Winifredian were Mrs. E. B. Sydney-Smith and her pet dog, Puddin, who have circled the globe. They are going to New York from there to San Francisco. Puddin enjoyed the trip immensely, according to his mistress.

LOS ANGELES IS BACK; UNABLE TO LAND

Lakehurst, N. J., June 8 (I.N.S.).—Forced by engine trouble to turn back at Cleveland while enroute to St. Paul and Minneapolis, the dirigible Los Angeles returned to the naval air station here early today.

The Los Angeles arrived over the field at 2:10 o'clock Eastern daylight saving time but was unable to land, due to a dense fog. She left in touch with ground officials by radio.

A Northeast wind was blowing steadily at fifteen miles an hour and attaining an occasional velocity of twenty-two miles. It may be impossible to take the ship into her hangar today.

While waiting for the fog to rise the Los Angeles cruised at an altitude of 400 feet.

The dirigible left the air station at 2:38 o'clock, Sunday morning. She developed engine trouble when near Cleveland, and shortly headed back for Lakehurst.

It was the first time that trouble of any sort has overtaken the giant air ship, whose first flight was the one from Germany to the United States. The trip to the Norse-American Centennial celebration at St. Paul was the longest it had ever undertaken exclusively over the United States soil.

Prince Has Holiday

Durban, Union of South Africa, June 8 (A.P.).—Free of official functions for three days, the Prince of Wales is passing a holiday here. Today's program included a round of golf and a polo game.

DAVE BANCROFT BASEBALL STAR FOR 15 YEARS

PLAYING CLASSY GAME

Braves Leader Is a Brilliant Fielder and Also Able to Hit

By NICK FLATLEY

Dave Bancroft, the handsome young manager of the Boston Braves, has been in the game of baseball for fifteen years. That's a bit longer than the average stretch of the youth who chooses the diamond for a career.

Danny isn't a big, powerful husky chap, like most of the boys who have been fixtures on the playing field. He's slight, inclined to be delicate, doesn't weigh more than 150, and should have passed on quite a while back.

Yet Davey was playing the best game of shortstop in baseball just now, until he hurt his thumb and is up with the Hornsbys and the Fournliers and the Wheats in the batting averages.

At a time when most athletes are preparing to fold up the uniforms and retire with their memories, little Danny is hopping gaily to his greatest heights.

DAVID has always been a brilliant fielder, and a keen, clever bird at the plate. He usually hits around .300, but never and any wild batting streaks. Yet his brilliance was never as great on the base line as it has been this Spring. His hitting has never approached the savage mauling that has grown to be a habit with him.

There must be a reason. In addition to the increasing years, Danny has the responsibility of managing a young and uncertain ball club. He could fall down entirely in his own work on the field and not be blamed much. But he keeps getting better.

THE cause of the change for the better is twofold. Manager Bancroft's health is better this spring than it has been for years. And he has the real fighting spirit. He's the sort of chap who gets a great kick out of overcoming obstacles. He naturally loves to beat a long shot.

LATE last Summer, several specialists called in Manager Bancroft that an operation would remove the cause of several ailments that annoyed him constantly. The operation was necessary, exactly. The condition was merely trouble, some, enough to impair efficiency. Nine out of ten players would have dodged the knife and trusted to luck. Danny was good enough to play in any league, for years and years.

But he hurdled right into the hospital, had himself sawed open, and was an interesting invalid for two or three months. Then he proceeded to take great care of himself. He exercised regularly, he absorbed plenty of fresh air, and made it a point to get all the slumber that was in sight. Being young and full of vim, he hadn't done all those little things as carefully as he might have previously.

THE rest and the exercise tamed down an excessively nervous temperament. The small manager began to tack on weight, the healthy poundage that can be acquired while he plays fiddling at golfing. He's a fresh air and exercise fiend, and he has become, in a month or so, the best living exports of that method of collecting physical health.

The boys who are dreaming of making their high school teams, of their college days, and later on coming to the big show, can profit by studying Danny.

"Give Us a Home Run," Is Duncan Sisters' Wish

Vivian and Rosetta Duncan as they looked watching a ball game at Braves Field.

By HELEN BISSETT

The Duncan sisters just had to go to Braves Field before the Braves left home for the road to see Dave's boys do their stuff.

Topsy and Eva just love ball games. After their own work in the theatre, there is nothing they love so much as a nice snappy battle between a couple of good teams, so they dropped everything and took themselves out to the ball park and settled themselves comfortably.

"Got to have a score card," observed Rosetta. "It's no good unless you know who's who." So the sisters buried their pretty noses in the pasteboards and by the time the game started they had everybody sorted out and in nice order.

The whole grandstand soon knew that the girls were there sitting right behind the dugout, and they attracted nearly as much interest as the game.

Two ambitious youths, aged about 12, almost fell over themselves in their anxiety to get near enough to thrust a couple of autograph books into the hands of the sisters. "My goodness, do you always carry this with you?" asked Vivian as she and Rosetta good naturedly scratched their names in the books, thereby giving the youngsters the thrill of their lives. "Sure," answered the ambitious ones with a grin. "Our motto is be prepared." Hereupon they were shuffled off by the head usher.

Just then Davey Bancroft caught sight of the girls and stopped to speak to them and have his picture taken with the charming stars, one on each side. And Davy's wife was sitting right there watching and not minding a bit in the least. In fact she was smiling all over her pretty face.

Then old June Pluvius got tired of being idle and looked out to see what was happening. He put a crimp in the diamond. But the fans only moved back under cover and the players went right on playing. Rosetta and Vivian moved back with the rest but they were easy to see in the crowd, because Rosetta wore a chic costume of pale blue while Vivian was clad from top to toe in canary yellow, which exactly matched her golden hair and set off her fair complexion beautifully.

"I think it's a shame the way the audiences boo the players when they have a streak of hard luck," said Rosetta. "They can play 50 perfect games and if they lose out on the 51st the fans give them the razz." she continued indignantly as the stands voiced their disgust with a bad play. "Mm-m," gurgled Vivian, backing up her sister's statement.

School Chatter

For a man who never participated in track athletics prior to entering college, Andy Oberlander, the big Dartmouth track and grid star, has come along wonderfully under Harry Hillman. His feat of taking first place with a heave of 141 feet in the hammer throw against Wesleyan, gave the Dartmouth mentor almost as much satisfaction as the winning of the meet.

Evidently "Brother" Casson knew what he was about when he sacrificed his baseball talents to compete for University of Penn in the high jump this Spring. The former Brookline High athlete has shown much promise in the event.

Capt. Connie Wettegreen, who has already led his Malden High track team to three dual wins since his election, is reaping his worth as leader of the Blue and Gold forces. This boy has been cleaning up all opposition in both the mile and the half-mile.

While good receivers are not as plentiful in scholastic ranks this season as in the past, Phil Cumbolinco, the hard working Malden catcher, will be up with the leaders when the season closes. It is interesting to note that this boy, playing his second season behind the shi, has more assists to his credit than any other backstop in scholastic ranks.

SOX IN THIRD GAME WITH INDIANS

By NICK FLATLEY.

Lee Fohl's Red Sox, who look like a better team than they were in the opening months of the season, play two more games with Tris Speaker's Indians, and then round out the week with the St. Louis Browns.

The native athletes managed to break even last week, although they were nearly broiled to death doing that little thing. The team wins, plays at the finish, but so was the rest of the league. Three wins and three losses wasn't a bad week, when you consider that four games were played with the flying Macks.

Nick Flatley

The best development of the stand to date has been Pitcher Charles Ruffing. He looks like a real find. He beat both Indians and Athletics by great, high class pitching. He has plenty of stuff, and has discovered what it's for. He doesn't get worried or fretted, and threatens to build up quite a presentable record before the campaign dies.

Ruffing is the kind of athlete the managers like. He does what he's told, and never gets the notion that because he has fanned 3 batter or two he knows more than the old birds. If young pitchers as a class could get that habit, and get through with it, there wouldn't be so many mound failures.

The visiting Indians do not look like a dangerous club. They haven't the spark that goes with victory. That's natural as they haven't been winning and are in the midst of an upheaval that has next year rather than this as an objective.

Sisler's Browns, who follow the Speakers in, are playing mightly good ball now. They started rather slowly, but when the boys found out that Manager George was back in his real hitting form, they began to play ball. For the last month the front runs the league, has been shooting ahead as well as the leaders. The Brownies are a long way from the front, but have ambitions. So the Sox will not have any tea parties while they're present.

MISS EDERLE PLANS CHANNEL SWIM IN JULY

Boulogne, France, June 8 (A.P.)—The first attempt by Miss Gertrude Ederle, American woman champion to swim the English Channel will probably be made between July 20 and 25, according to her trainer, Jabez Wolfe, himself a noted English swimmer.

He has arranged training quarters at Cape Gris-Nez, near here, where the start will be made.

KEARNS IN NEW YORK; TO SECOND WALKER

New York, June 8 (A.P.)—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, reached New York from California and announced that he expected to second the welterweight champion against Harry Greb in their middleweight championship fight at the Polo Grounds on June 19.

Kearns has never obtained a license in New York on either a manager or trainer, so that it will be necessary for him to appear before the Boxing Commission. In this event, the commission has indicated that the question of Kearns' stand on a Dempsey-Wills match will be reopened.

Greb is expected in New York tomorrow.

JACK PASSES UP AN OFFER OF $150,000

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Special Cable to Universal Service.

Berlin, June 8.—Made enthusiastic by Jack Dempsey's sparring exhibition here, Berlin sporting circles have made an offer of $150,000 to the champion to fight Breitensraetter, one of Germany's best fighters. Dempsey today declined the offer, saying:

"I was offered $500,000 to fight Tom Gibbons, and it is just as much trouble to train for a little fight as for a little fight as for a championship affair."

Dempsey sparred before 60,000 at Luna Park, each of whom paid 50 cents to see the exhibition. Dempsey said:

"Germany has gone boxing mad. I am afraid the interallied military controllers will get after me soon for increasing Germany's fighting spirit and power."

Dempsey is a constant marvel to Germany sportsmen, because he drinks nothing but water and he doesn't smoke. Jack said:

"It is awfully hard to pass up this good beer, but it has to be done in the interest of business."

SUZANNE WINS TWO DOUBLE TITLES

Paris, June 8 (A.P.)—Suzanne Lenglen has won three championships in the French open hard court tennis tournament. Paired with Mlle. Vlasto, she defeated Miss Kathleen MacKane and Miss Colyer of England, in the finals of the women's doubles. The score was 6—1, 3—11, 6—2.

Mlle. Lenglen and Mr. Brugnon later won the mixed doubles from Mlle. Vlasto and Henri Cochet, 6—2 6—2.

Twi Schedule for the Week

MONDAY — Cornets at Millstreams, Cheekers at Malden, Dilbey at North Cambridge, Lawrence at Reading, Manchester at South Sudbury.

TUESDAY—Nashua at Salem, South Boston at Chelsea, Reading at Abbot.

WEDNESDAY—Reading at South Boston, Malden at Lawrence.

THURSDAY — Millstreams at Malden, South Boston at Dilbey, Cornets at Cheekers, Salem at Wakefield, Lawrence at Nashua.

FRIDAY—North Cambridge at Millstreams, Malden at Salem, Abbot at Dilbey, Manchester at Cornets.

SATURDAY—Abbot at Manchester, Dilbey at Cornets, Millstreams at Nashua, Lawrence at Salem, Cheekers at North Cambridge, Nashua at Abbot, Manchester at North Cambridge.

FOUR LOCAL 'TWI' GAMES TONIGHT

By JOE CASHMAN

The third week of the Boston Twilight League season opens this evening with five games on tap.

Four of the contests will be staged hereabouts, Manchester playing at South Boston, Dilbey at North Cambridge, Checker at Malden and the Cornets and Millstreams at Everett. The other tilt will find Lawrence battling Redfield at Reading.

South Boston can attain a .500 percentage by defeating Manchester at the C. J. Lee Park and Manager Jim Newton will put his strongest lineup on the field in an effort to gain the verdict.

After a flying start, the Peninsula clue fell into a slump last week, dropping three straight.

Jean Debue's Manchester team has lost several battles of late by one run. This means that the nine needs only a few breaks to become a consistent winner.

North Cambridge will also be striving for a .500 average when it tackles Dilboy at Russell Field. The Leahymen have yet to win on their home grounds and are very anxious to defeat the veterans and show the native populace that they are far from being the poorest aggregation in the circuit.

On paper, the Checker-Malden fracas at Ferryway Green looks like an even money bet.

The Millstreams are still Nashua's greatest rivals and hope to gain a little on the leaders this evening by turning back the Cornets at the Everett High School Field.

"Twi" Chatter

Abbot Worsted defeated North Cambridge, 5 to 2, at Forge Village in the only scheduled Sabbath league contest.

* * *

Manchester visited Lawrence for an exhibition game and lost in ten innings, 8 to 7. Contests between league teams that don't count in the standing seem to meet with disfavor among the fans. Attendance at both league and exhibition tilts would probably be greater if the clubs were forced to book independent nines on open dates.

International League

Rochester 4, Providence 3.
Buffalo 6, Baltimore 5.
Jersey City 13, Syracuse 11 (first game); Jersey City 3, Syracuse 2 (second game).
Reading 11, Toronto 9.

FREE BASEBALL TICKETS

To each of the first five fans whose correct identification is received at this office ON THE ACCOMPANYING BLANK ONLY the Boston Evening American will give a pair of tickets to a big league game.

In cases of ties, neatness shall decide. In all matters the decision of the baseball editor shall be final, and all persons by entering the contest accept its conditions.

THE Commercial A. C. has now signed Jimmy Armato White for the semi-final bout between the Arlington heavyweight champion and Young Sterling, who is slated at Mechanics Building on next Monday night. This is one of the best bouts we've had here for the Sterling boy in his last Boston appearance Sterling scored out Quentin Romero Rocca while Cook merely gave Sharkey Jack Sharkey.

GENE TUNNEY AFTER JACK DEMPSEY'S CROWN

New York, June 8—Both Gene Tunney, U. S. A. and Tommy Gibbons, the St. Paulite, were still full of the stuff at the end of the last round of the twelfth round at the Polo Grounds. The fight went to Tunney on a decision.

Tunney found time to say:

"I did a good job. I feel Dempsey was right to call me out, and now I think I am entitled to a shot at his title. I will take on Harry Wills if the public wants the match, but would rather fight Dempsey first. I did my best to knock out Gibbons, but he stood up remarkably well. For my part, I think I proved that my improvement is real. Now I want Dempsey."

THERE is a tremendous difference between the middleweight and heavyweight divisions and beat a real good big man in John Arthur Johnson.

Ketchel looked mighty formidable at times against a man his own size, but against a man of the giant build of Wills, Tunney, Gibbons, Godfrey, Charley Weinert, John Arthur Johnson and Tom Wilson

HOWEVER, Slattery is framed for at least 180 pounds. He is six feet tall. Ketchel was just under five feet ten. He wasn't built to chess much poise I can lay pounds Sarazen it just possible to reduce his present weight and retain his present power. Now he is a greater fighting machine than

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

IN most of the large cities it's against the law for people to carry revolvers. The only weapons they're allowed to have are police whistles. This is silly, you can't blow a burglar's brains out with a musical instrument.

IF this were possible, a lot of saxophone players would have been dead long ago.

WHISTLES may be sweeter, but revolvers are more business like.

BESIDES, if a thug holds you up and you start blowing for a cop he pulls out his black-jack and takes your wind away.

AND when a man has no wind there's no use blowing.

YOU can't run a whistle without power.

AND one little wallop on the head will put your power house out of order.

A MAN can carry two or three revolvers and be doubly safe, but no matter how many whistles you own, you can only blow one of them at a time.

ONE guy never goes out of the house at night unless he takes another fellow with him. In case of trouble he's always go somebody along to help him blow.

NOT only that, but he eats garlic to give him stronger power.

IF he met a burglar, the garlic might accord where the whistle would be liable to fall.

ONE guy thought he saw a burglar the other evening and blew his whistle so loud that traffic stopped all over town.

THIS was in Philadelphia, and he blew it so hard that 17 cops came running over from Baltimore.

WHEN the cops rushed up to him they found him lying on the sidewalk. He used so much breath he fainted.

HE didn't have any left to breathe with.

HE was a pitiful looking sight, his lips were split in nine places.

HE says that after this he's going to blow it with a bicycle pump.

REVOLVERS may not be good weapons, but you never see a holdup man frightening a pedestrian by sticking a whistle in his ribs.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHILD?

By Lucy Lowell

VACATIONS can teach parents more about their children than perhaps any other time we spend with them. To follow a trail with that rather adolescent boy of yours and to sleep close to him under the stars, indulging in little intimacies talks just as you done off, is to build a bridge between you and your boy that will hold against all the separating influences of our whirling modern life."

Dr. William Palmer Lucas, professor of pediatrics at the University of California Medical School, writes this to fathers and mothers in a remarkable article on "Planning the Vacation," in "Parent-Teacher," a magazine published by the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations.

In his article Dr. Lucas gives many reasons why it is important for parents and children to spend their vacations together in the open —on the shore or in the mountains. Vacation time is growing time for the youngsters, he states, both mentally and physically, and a time which should be planned with the greatest of care that not only the children but their fathers and mothers may benefit by it.

I wish I might give you the article in full, since I believe it might help you to plan a restful, happy vacation for your family. But since space will not permit, here is some of the advice Dr. Lucas offers:

If you live in level valleys or on the sea coast, go to the mountains. Camp if possible children enjoy camping because they can share in the daily routine of camp life.

See that your children learn to notice and enjoy the beauties of nature—sunrise and sunset, moonrise, and the great stars so close to the mountain peaks.

Children's clothing should be simple—overalls, or coveralls, which do not show soil and launder easily, and which allow freedom of motion and expose as much as possible of the body surface to the Summer air, thus building up resistance to Winter colds and infections.

Every father should see that his children learn to swim. And there is no better teacher than "Dad."

Change the routine of your life as much as you wish, but be regular in that change. See that meals and the bedtime and rising hours are regular.

Do not boss the children, but make suggestions for each day's activity. Plan picnics and hikes, and use these outings to teach them many things without seeming to do so.

Rest must be a part of each day's program. Read a story or play a game for an hour after luncheon, to keep the children physically quiet for a time. Otherwise fatigue will unset digestion and bring on nerves and irritation.

Vacation should not be free from certain tasks and responsibilities. Give a child some definite thing to do each day that he knows is a help in running the camp.

THE SONG OF THE LOCUST

By Foxy Grandpa

IT'S going to be a warm day tomorrow, isn't it, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby as I lay under an oak tree in the south of France.

"What makes you say that, Bobby?" I asked.

"Don't you hear the locusts singing up here in this tree?" asked the boy. "Isn't that a sign of hot weather? I should think their throats would ache."

"They don't sing with their throats," said Bunny. "I'll show you if one drops down."

From that moment Bobby was thrown into a state of impatient waiting. He looked up into the thick branches of the tree. He even shook the trunk to see if one of the locusts wouldn't fall down.

Finally he grew tired of waiting and settled himself comfortably with his back against the tree, took out his penknife and began playing mumbly-peg.

All of a sudden there was a strong gust of wind. The tree trembled. The leaves shook and there right in Bobby's lap, fell five locusts, down out of the tree.

Bobby jumped up and shook them off. Then he leaned down to examine them.

Bunny was down on all fours now. Here was a chance for him to play professor and teach Bobby, and he didn't lose much time in starting his lecture.

"Haven't they fine wings?" he commenced. "Just look how they glisten in the sun. They don't look strong enough to carry them, do they?"

"No," said Bobby. "Do they make the noise with their wings, Bunny?"

"No," replied Bunny.

"Perhaps with their legs like grasshoppers?" persisted Bobby.

"No," announced Bunny. "I'll show you. Turn this fellow over on his back."

Bobby turned the locust over and Bunny proceeded with his discourse.

"Do you see those sexy plates under his tummy?" asked Bunny. "Lift them up and under that is the wall of the chamber, which you will see is a membrane which makes the noise, as the locust moves it with two tiny muscles."

"Sure, I see," replied Bobby, as he gently lifted the tiny plates.

He turned to another locust and started to examine it. His little brow wrinkled and he looked puzzled.

"The locust hasn't got that little soundbox," exclaimed Bobby.

"No," said Bunny, showing no surprise. "That is a lady locust. They don't make any noise."

"How strange," said Bobby. "Imagine the ladies having to keep quiet all their lives. Wouldn't that be awful!"

I chuckled and said:

"Yes," the lady scolds—that is the real name of these locusts—haven't much to say. Although the song of the locust has been known ever since Biblical times, the old Greeks knew that it was only the gentlemen who could raise their voices in song. For an old Greek poet wrote, 'Happy are the deathless lives, for they all have voiceless wives.'"

"Do you know," said Bunny seriously, "I've seen some men who, I am sure, wouldn't mind being locusts for a while."

CHESTER'S CHUCKLES

By Chester C. Connor

AT this season it's not what you drive but what you fly.

It's always easy to feel sorry for your neighbor's wife.

The minute usually picks a fight about the time she wants a new hat.

The radio has this on a cat. It doesn't have to be fed when you go away.

When that old feud the family blows out our sigh of relief is almost as loud.

The furnace has finally granted us a reprieve.

It's better for 'em to wear short skirts than none at all.

Don't let your health get away and you won't have to go hunting it.

Too many of us have lines instead of thinking parts.

We would all be rich if we could sell our advice the way some professional people do.

Advertising never helped the mosquito.

An old red flannel shirt makes a nifty sweater.

It's moonlight that makes a single man see double.

Whenever husbands step and look they have to do a lot of listening.

Only Congress can adjourn and leave bills unsettled—several of us try, however.

WHAT'S your idea of heaven? How do you believe there is a heaven? What do you think happens to you after you die?

I talked with a young woman yesterday. She says she believes death is the end. "Our bodies crumble—go back into the earth from which they came," she said.

"They've served their purpose which was simply to carry on the life of the species."

"But most of the love and ambition that animated them while they lived?" I asked. "What of those stimulating visions which no human mind could have generated? Do they perish too? Had they no meaning?"

"They are only dreams," she answered. "They are simply impulses and urges which promote the physical, stimulate hunger and thirst and the passion to mate, promote it. There's no spiritual significance to them. Even honor and self-sacrifice are instincts for the preservation of the race."

Is that what YOU think?

Are you a collection of elementals, producing definite reactions within a certain time, and then reverting to our original form? Do you see no higher purpose than that in it all?

Or are you like my other friend who believes that we enter a real heaven or an actual hell after our probation on earth?

Dominus isn't a Living Principle to this friend. You don't behave yourself to curry favor with Him. You do right to get a reward. Righteousness, in fact, is a most loathsome process to this friend.

It is just "righteousness" if you're really exhausting, and you must be something wrong about it. An evil, on the contrary, is a most delightful and tempting process. But you get in hell if you're good and a prude, even if you're bad.

Is that YOUR idea of life after death? Would you go through a lifetime of irritating righteousness just to sit and wear a halo for eternity? Bosh! I would not.

There's a story running the United States which, to me, offers the most satisfactory play for life after death. I'm not saying this is what will happen. But personally I hope it does.

It opens in the smoking room of a millionaire. Seven people enter that room in various states of haste and excitement incident to their arrival on board ship. They are an oddly assorted company. I've pepper-trayed, materialistic business man. A hardhearted, mercenary, affected society woman. A lovable, drunken, ne'er-do-well. An old, gentle working woman. Two lovers. A rector, hastily unctuous and right-sous—secretly unclean.

The conventional smoking room on the usual liner. Ordinary people with the customary attitude—with one exception. Strangely enough, no one of them seems quite sure how he got there or where he is going.

AND GRADUALLY IT DAWNS ON THEM THAT THEY ARE DEAD.

THEY ARE QUITE DEAD. Through their garrulous discussion sound the dim, distant tones of the funeral drums beating the dead march over their graves. DEAD!

Yet there they sit, drinking, gossiping, sunbathing, sneering, flying into tempers—each according to his code. DEAD! Yet the finished soul goes on as though it were still housed in its body!

So there in that conventional smoking room, in the common words which one human uses to another in an ordinary conversation, they reveal their souls and record their judgments.

Which is simply this—TO LIVE ON, BOUND BY THEIR OWN WEAKNESS UNTIL THE SEEDS OF STRENGTH AND GOODNESS AWAKE IN THEM AND THEY ARE FREED, TO STILL LIVE ON THROUGH BIGGER, FINER SERVICE.

I hope death will be like that. If I've done any little good I don't want any reward. I'd raise Cain if I had to sit still and look at a Reverend Soul. I WANT A CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD.

Even at the best, the good I've done isn't a tin cent to the good I HAVEN'T done—the opportunities I've wasted—the chances I've spoiled —the service I've scamped—the generosity I've perverted. I've perpetrated. AND I WANT A CHANCE TO MAKE A BETTER RECORD. I have a chance now and I'm doing my damnedest with it, but it isn't enough of a chance.

Even though I live to be a hundred, I won't touch the finish of the job. I don't care how hard I'll have to work if they'll only let me work. But I simply can't bear the thought that the Great Power will think so little of me that He'll shelve me on a pedestal to Heaven or a pit in hell.

SOME OPEN LETTERS

By Dave Sentner

DEAR FOLKS:

There ain't no detour signs on the road to the poorhouse.

To a Landlady:

Why is it that a boarding-house chicken has as many more necks than any other kind of chicken?

Dear Golf Player:

I will be you in on a great discovery to keep from losing a golf ball. I took them overnight in a mixture of onions and garlic.

To a Barber:

Do you talk much in your sleep?

Dear Reader:

You ask me how you can keep your friends from borrowing money from you. What you must do is to get them for a loan before they get a chance to ask you.

To an Office Worker:

Never laugh at the boss when he's serious, but always laugh with the boss when he's humorous.

Dear Grocery Store Owner:

We wish your eggs were as fresh as your clerks are.

To a Flea:

Does your wife do her reducing exercises every morning, too?

Dear Beale Bobb:

No, you never hear of a man stepping on a woman's skirt these days. Men don't step that high.

To a Bolshevik:

Remember, Ike, the fellow who rocks the boat also falls in.

Dear Optician:

How much to pack your store? Put in a series of crossword puzzles instead of those eye charts to test your customers' vision.

—By B. C. Forbes—

Which has the United States more of at present, prosperity or depression?

Some say one, others the other.

* * *

Well, now, what are the f[illegible]

How can the facts be established?

There are a number of recognized yardsticks for measuring the degree of prosperity or depression ruling. Let us specify the more important of these yardsticks and note briefly what they tell.

* * *

Employment is a trustworthy guide. Employment today is far above the average and at wages yielding about the highest purchasing power in the history of this country or any other country.

Are our railroads handling a light or heavy volume of traffic? Week after week new record-breaking figures are announced.

Bad times are accompanied by very little building. Building activities are in full swing, at almost the greatest rate the country has ever known.

Both our national imports and national exports are moving at much greater than normal speed.

What of money rates? Money rates are low. But this fact has ceased to mean what it did in prewar days, for we have now such a superabundance of gold that all the credit necessary to finance an unparalleled volume of business can be furnished without bringing about old-time stringency.

The weekly bank statistics reflect that general business activity is very notable. Indeed, bank clearings have been breaking all records.

Record-breaking sales of automobiles, while not a measuring-rod of business, certainly do not suggest hard times.

Mail order houses report that they are benefiting markedly by the improved financial status in many agricultural States.

Last week, despite forecasts of a 15,000,000-bale crop, cotton quotations moved up briskly to 14 cents a pound.

Marshall Field and Company's week-end report says:

"Current wholesale distribution of drygoods was well in excess of last week's volume and exceeded by a large margin that of the same week a year ago. Business during May was well ahead of May, 1924, both road sales and deliveries being recorded in much larger volume. Sales of merchandise for future shipment also showed a marked improvement over the corresponding month's figure last year."

The brief downward movement in the general price level apparently has been arrested. The latest compilations show an advance. Overproduction has been affecting prosperity in such industries as iron and steel, oil, copper, sugar, textiles and some others, but the fact is that consumption in most directions is very heavy.

Public utility corporations are doing the largest business in their history.

On the New York Stock Exchange average prices for stocks again moved up to the highest point ever touched, surely a queer performance were business conditions and prospects as unsatisfactory as pessimists represent. Also, it is worth noting that dividend increases have again become very numerous.

* * *

A Summer lull in business and in security markets may be experienced, but, taking a longer look ahead, I cannot become bearish. However, it is your duty to do your own reasoning, draw your own deductions, and make your plans accordingly.

BAY STATE IS LEADER WITH SHOEMAKING

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor.

Massachusetts is still the leading State of the Union with its shoe making. How trouble in shoe industry in Lynn and Haverhill has held back Massachusetts from making a much better production in this field in recent years is told by bureau of labor statistics in a report covering a survey of labor conditions in the industry in Massachusetts made by Robert S. Billups and Philip L. Jones of the bureau. Massachusetts in 1914 produced 115,224,283 pairs; in 1919, 116,992,912; in 1921, 85,819,586, and in 1923, 89,517,331. New York in 1914 produced 28,798,153 pairs; in 1919, 62,773,081; in 1921, 63,696,324, and in 1923, 75,821,623.

Harvard Economic Service says: No pronounced change in the money situation seems to be immediately in prospect. The forerunner of a major decline in the stock market—a business boom leading to unsound conditions and money stringency—has been avoided since the depression of 1920-21; and while credit and banking conditions remain strong and business men maintain their present conservative attitude there is little likelihood that boom conditions and their inevitable results will develop.

The outlook for the second half of 1925 is for a large volume of business and stable or possibly rising commodity prices. Ease in the money market, a large volume of current distribution and hand-to-mouth buying continue to characterize the business situation. The commodity markets have recently shown some improvement and there is increasing evidence that the price recession has about run its course.

* * *

Leon E. Merchant, at his new offices in the Postoffice Square Building, hands me this:

The Bear—"I told you stocks were going off. See what they have been doing the past several days."

The Bull—"But I told you they were going up. Look what they did the past several days."

The Bear—"You must have made a lot of money on the upturn."

The Bull—"Not a sou. The ones I bought didn't go up with the rest. How did you come out?"

The Bear—"Got cold feet and covered at the top. I was short of the stocks that advanced most!"

* * *

In Boston recently I met F. W. Hartford, former Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., publisher of the Portsmouth Herald, and intimately identified with the industrial development of the seaport city. Mr. Hartford can feel justly proud of his having finally secured exclusive control of the local newspaper field in Portsmouth by his acquisition of the Portsmouth Times, edited by the late True L. Norris while he was Democratic National Committeeman and founded 57 years ago. First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett was at one time a backer of the Times, then, of course, a Republican paper, but retired from the association on assuming national office. The paper naturally suffered from Mr. Bartlett's withdrawal.

Portsmouth is one of those cities in New England which, as a seaport, naturally boomed mightily during the war, and dire things were forecast by the pessimists for its future after the fateful signing of the Armistice. Col. Hartford remained aligned with the optimists, however, and the city has continued to progress. Prohibition dealt it a severe blow, closing three great breweries, but one of these became an auto body factory. Incidentally, the city boasts in the Morley concern the world's largest button producing factory.

* * *

Just as the Courier Citizen at Lowell today has an industry in itself in turning out the book work for the big telephone company, so the Portsmouth Times once obtained rich revenues by doing all the time table printing for the Boston & Maine Railroad, then in a heyday of prosperity.

* * *

Holtzer-Cabot Electric Co., Boston, says: Prospects for business, as a whole, for the balance of this year will be about the same volume as for the past year and that it will continue "spotty."

Production costs are likely to remain about the same and sales prices of finished product due to keener competition will be downward.

We are operating at about 70 per cent. of capacity, although our volume of output is not much below normal. Stocks of raw materials and finished parts on hand are low. Stocks of finished goods, part of which are being held for customers' release, are fairly large.

We see no indications of any change in the labor and wage situation.

Customers are buying very conservatively and expect the manufacturer to carry the reserve stock and to be in position for prompt delivery.

FLAX TO BE TRIED AS SUBSTITUTE FOR COTTON

If experiment now being worked out by Ford Motor Company is adopted, flax will supplant cotton in a market now consuming 24,000,000 square yards of cotton fabric a year. Characteristics of new flax fabric are such that this may even be used in automobile tire industry. Ford company recently began in experimental way, to produce artificial leather based on flax fabric rather than cotton.

U. S. REFUNDING IS SMALLEST SINCE WAR

United States Treasury's June financial operation will constitute smallest refunding since World War. Plan calls for disposal of only $125,000,000 in new certificates of indebtedness, bearing 3 per cent. interest and maturing one year from June 15, which, together with balances on hand and June 15 tax receipts, will retire more that $400,000,000 of maturing paper.

NEW BUILDING SETS RECORD FOR MONTH

All existing records for volume of construction work under way in the United States during a single month were shattered in May, according to statistics compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America.

May volume was 26 per cent. greater than that of April, reflecting the great volume of contracts awarded during the two preceding months. The amount of construction activity in the first five months of this year is being taken as an indication that 1925 will set a new twelve-month record.

The cost of construction in the principal centres of the United States remained stationary during May, being exactly double that of 1913. The fact that costs have not increased as a result of the heavy volume of contracts awarded in March is being viewed as a marked assurance of the present stab[illegible] the construction industry.

The volume of building contracts during April was the greatest for any month in any year on record, exceeding the previous high mark set in the preceding month, by 11 per cent. Contracts awarded during the first four months of 1925 exceed the volume of those awarded during the like period of 1924 by 8 per cent.

The average of wages in the building trades as paid in the principal construction centres of the United States showed no change from the April mark during May. There has been no change in this average since January. The average of prices paid by contractors for construction materials declined one point during May, lower prices for lumber and brick in several localities being chiefly responsible.

Contracts awarded for concrete surface pavement during April totalled 4,900,000 square yards for streets and alleys and 12,500,000 square yards for roads. The combination of these totals, 17,400,000 square yards, is larger than the corresponding figure for any month on record, exceeding the previous high mark, set in April, 1922, by 38 per cent. The combined yardage awarded during the first four months of 1925 exceeds the corresponding figure for 1924 by 32 per cent.

UNFILLED TONNAGE OF STEEL AT LOW LEVEL

Unfilled tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corporation is reported to be within 1,000,000 tons of the lowest level it has reached in years. The financial district expects that figures for May, to be made public next Wednesday, will show not much above 4,000,000 tons. The average price of eight leading products is placed at $52.11, only 57 cents a ton above the low record of 1924.

WHEAT ENJOYS A RALLY AFTER INITIAL SETBACK

Wheat enjoyed a rally in Chicago after an initial setback. Opening quotations 1 to 2⅜c. lower, July 1.67 to 1.68 and September 1.63¾ to 1.64½, were followed by some additional declines and then by a reactio nof about 1½c. from the early bottom figures.

Before you buy or sell any stocks or bonds you ought to get expert advice. Send inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, financial editor, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

BONDS NEEDED

To S. F. T.—A person in your circumstances should buy only bonds of the soundest type. I am enclosing you a suitable list from which to make selections.

SELLING MOTORS SHORT

To S. D. F.—Selling motors short may be a good and profitable pastime later on, but it looks exceedingly dangerous as I write.

HOLD TELEPHONE

To I. K. S.—I see no reason why you should sell your American Telephone stock at this time. Hold it

GET DIVERSITY

To M. H. T.—Your list, consisting entirely of motor common stocks, needs diversity. I am sending herewith a list that will enable you to secure needed variations of risk.

"ABSOLUTELY SAFE"

To B. M. U.—You say you want something absolutely safe. There is no such thing. Even those who held Liberty bonds, the world's safest security, were in many cases forced to sell at a considerable depreciation and consequent loss of capital. There are, however, multitudes of sound securities, both in stocks and bonds, that strike me as being entirely within your logical requirements.

MONTANA POWER

To K. Y. W.—Montana Power is accounted a good investment. It seems high for its yield at present, but appears to possess attractive speculative possibilities for those who have been accumulating it.

ALLIS CHALMERS

To S. J. U.—Boston Stock Exchange house review says of Allis Chalmers: After testing the patience of holders of the stock, Allis-Chalmers is showing signs of returning market activity on the upside. Selling at around 83 it is still some three points under the high of last March. Nevertheless, the advance to date has been substantial as a year ago the stock was selling for about half the current figure.

Allis-Chalmers manufactures a varied line of products including steam, gas and oil engines, and machinery for mining, farming and electrical purposes. Recently the electrical end of the business has been increasing rapidly until now it comprises nearly half of the total bookings. In this line the company promises to benefit by the prevailing boom in the electric light and power industry.

The capital structure of the company is simple. There is no funded debt and only $16,000,000 7 per cent. preferred followed by 260,000 shares of common. In 1924, Allis-Chalmers earned $8.01 for the common. In its treasury strength the company enjoys an enviable position. Its current assets exceed $30,000,000, against which there are current liabilities of but $5,140,000. Cash and marketable securities are only a little less than twice current obligations. The company, then, is in a position where directors may consider the payment of something in the nature of a special disbursement to stockholders. The recent increase in the dividend rate from $4 to $6 indicates the directors feel the financial position of the company is secure.

For the first quarter of 1925, Allis-Chalmers earned $2.17 a share on the common. On April 1 the company had $10,140,000 of unfilled orders against $10,197,000 on January 1. There was a slight falling off on May 1. Current decrease in orders is largely the result of speeding up the process of manufacture as bookings have held steadily. Speed in manufacture indicates larger profits.

Officials look for a somewhat reduced volume of business during the Summer with improvement in the Fall, particularly if general crop conditions are good. There is every reason to expect the final 1925 showing will be as good as in 1924.

AMOSKEAG

To L. O. T.—In view of the operations of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company for the first six months of the current fiscal year—the period ended Dec. 1 last—it is not strange that the trustees at their January meeting took no action on the common dividend. In fact the dividend on the preferred must be paid from accumulated surplus.

In the six months period referred to Amoskeag showed an operating loss of $1,048,000, but the interest received on the government bonds held in the treasury reduced the loss to $518,600. Thus $529,000 of interest receipts more than cut in halves the direct manufacturing loss.

In this half-year company operated its woolen looms but 42 per cent. of full time while the cotton looms ran but 23 per cent. full time. In the same manner woolen spindles were operated 45 per cent. capacity and cotton spindles 18 per cent. Cotton spun into yarn was only 18,000 bales—a fraction of what Amoskeag would require under normal conditions.

While 30 cent cotton prevailed during most of this period, the mills did not benefit as might be expected, due to the decline in goods prices. The profit margin is still far from satisfactory.

HIGH YIELD AND RISK.

To S. A. L.—You must realize that in accepting the high yield offered you are assuming a certain degree of risk. If you are in a position to take something more than what I consider the ordinary business risk, the issue is attractive at its present level. Otherwise you will do better to act more conservatively.

EARNING POWER

To S. I. M.—The answer to both of your questions is that common stocks, representing, as they do, ownership equities in corporations, sell on their earning power to a much greater extent than dividend yields. The theory is, of course, that these surplus earnings above dividend requirements, are the stockholders' and eventually will be distributed in some form or other at a later date. Price of common stocks is also influenced by future pros-

The Outlook for the Oil Companies

The attention of investors is being attracted by oil companies. There has been a decided improvement in the position of many of them, since production and consumption seem to be on a more stable basis. With a prospect of maintaining present prices and with demand strong, there is considerable optimism in this field.

We have prepared a tabular analysis of the leading oil companies, which will be sent to those interested upon request. Please mention circular A-4.

BROCKTON EDISON TO VOTE ON NEW STOCK

Special meeting of stockholders of Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Brockton will be held June 25 to vote on an increase in capital stock amounting to 32,280 shares. It is planned to offer the stock to shareholders at $40 a share.

In addition to capital expenditures paid for from the proceeds of sale of last stock issue in 1923, company has made expenditures amounting to approximately $886,000, principally on account of company's investment in Montaup Electric Co. and its own power plant and transmission line additions necessary to connect with the Montaup Co.'s lines. Its cash requirements for the balance of 1925, including the retirement of its present floating indebtedness of $555,000, will be approximately $1,325,000. The new issue of stock is for the purpose of capitalizing permanently a portion of these expenditures.

DIVIDEND UNCHANGED ON NEW CAR & FOUNDRY

Directors of the American Car & Foundry Company have just declared an initial quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the new no par common stock. The payment is on the same basis of ritur nas the $3 quarterly dividend on the old $100 par common stock, which recently was split up on a two to one basis.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLANS FOR TEXTILE SHOW

The Boston Chahber of Commerce, acting in conjunction with Boston Art Club, will stage a textile show Oct. 7 to 24 inclusive, which will emphasize the artistic qualities of textile materials in design, color, weave or any other quality which would place a fabric in the class of a work of art. The object of the show is to encourage original effort in design as well as to demonstrate local progress in this direction pariticulary as compared with articles of foreign manufacture. Best antiques, drawn from museums and private collections, will be shown as well as local mill products.

Young Gay Flapper, Old Quiet Queen

Easy to Guess What the QUEEN Would Have Said

"What Would She Have Thought of Me?"

The meaning of this picture, printed by The London Sketch, is quite plain, and the answer to the question under the picture is easy.

You see here the modern English flapper, looking at good old conservative Queen Victoria, great grandmother of the Prince of Wales, and wondering what the Queen of the 19th century would think of the cigarette-puffing, loose-lipped, short-haired, loud-voiced, vulgar flapper of the 20th Century.

It isn't hard to answer the question and to tell what Queen Victoria would have thought of the young woman with the cigarette casually dropped on the floor and the expression that tells of a mind vacant or worse than vacant.

The old Queen would have thought about that young flapper what any human being with common sense would think. She would have thought to herself:

"My dear, what you need is a better father and mother, some understanding of human decency, some ideas of family discipline.

"You need more THOUGHT in your head, less PAINT on your lips.

"You should have more respect for things that are respectable and less conceit concerning things that are not respectable, including yourself."

To the thoughts of the old Queen you might add this advice to the young flapper:

MORE SOAP and LESS PERFUME.

More EXERCISE and fewer COCKTAILS.

However, the loose-lipped, loose-mannered, loose-moraled flapper is only the exception and a passing phase of after the war foolishness. There are not very many of her and SHE WON'T LAST.

Young Astor Tries O. P. M.

He Borrows Joe Day's Useful Motto

"O. P. M.," says Joseph P. Day, who has bought and sold hundreds of millions in real estate, is the secret of the WISE man's success.

Young Mr. Vincent Astor, who recently sold his fine Fifth avenue house to an immigrant from Russia, seems to have heard of Mr. Day's motto and to have made up his mind that he would try it.

"O. P. M.," as you know, means "Other People's Money." And the wise use of O. P. M. means the SHORT CUT to success.

This doesn't mean taking other people's money without their consent. It means borrowing wisely TO USE PRODUCTIVELY. And thus cut across lots on the road to wealth.

Young Mr. Astor, the other day, borrowed two million dollars. He has fifty or a hundred millions of his own, but he presumably has that money working. He wanted to build a fifteen-story building, his credit is good, and he decided to give Mr. Day's motto a trial.

Assuming that his real estate investment is sound, these things will happen:

He will put two millions of dollars into a building on a piece of land well chosen. He will pay the lenders of the two millions at the rate of 5 per cent. a year, or $100,000.

His building will produce at least two and one-half times that amount. The income from the building, constantly reducing principal and interest charges, will pay for the building in ten years.

Then, Mr. Astor, still young, will have paid BACK the two million dollars, he will OWN the building, which will not have cost him a cent, thanks to "O. P. M.," and after that he will have $250,000 a year to spend for himself. Let's hope he will spend it WISELY.

That is how business men work. They supply the idea, the energy, take the risk and the nervous strain, reach out for "O. P. M.," get rich.

The trouble with most of them is that they don't know when to STOP.

But Joseph P. Day isn't like that. He intends to stop when he is eighty, take a long vacation, and then return to work. He is determined not to overdo it.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

IT used to be a popular conviction that a man had to "have his fling," just as a child had to have the measles or the whooping cough. And the sooner he had it and got OVER it, the better.

* * *

If he could "get it out of his system," along with his tonsils and his adenoids, the chances of the after effects were greatly minimized.

* * *

A good fling at twenty was supposed to last a man a lifetime. And leave him completely immune to any further temptations to zig zag from the straight and narrow path. And when he showed any symptoms of a recurrent attack, he was reminded that he had "HAD his fling."

* * *

But, all that is over!

* * *

Marrying a man with a dark brown "past" no longer insures either him or you that he will have a lily-white future, alas!

* * *

Nowadays the average man expects to have a "fling," like the flu, at least once annually. And there are chronic subjects to whom life is just one long, continuous FLING!

Helen Rowland

This is sad! Because, while a youthful fling is as natural as a baby's teething, a fling at forty or fifty is SO apt to leave a man with permanent heart-weakness, financial depression, general susceptibility and annoying ADHESIONS.

* * *

Worst of all, like a belated case of measles, it makes him so ridiculous!

* * *

The funniest and saddest sight on earth is that of a respectable, "husband-and-fatherly-looking" man, with a bald spot beginning to shine through his top hair, playing Lothario to some nineteen-year-old flapper, who is vainly trying to hide the boredom in one eye and the laughter in the other.

* * *

It never enters his head that the Prince Charming of even a modern girl's dreams may not be a benevolent gentleman with a fifty-inch belt and two chins.

* * *

It never seems to occur to him that, perhaps the wife who has known him all these years may be just as bored with him as he is with her, but that she is hanging onto her dignity and "playing the game" like a good sport.

* * *

Of course, the "fling" is no longer exclusively a masculine malady. Some women have adopted it with knickerbockers and the monocle.

* * *

But the only thing sadder than the sight of a middle-aged man trying to act like a skittish young colt, is that of a middle-aged woman trying to act like a frivolous kitten!

An old horse can't learn new tricks—but an old fool, alas, hasn't sense enough not to TRY!

Wants Clothing and Carriage

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a young mother and have three children, boy 3, girl 6 and baby 7 months old. My husband has been confined to the house for months with a sprained side and my baby and myself are both ill. We are sadly in need of clothing. I have to go to the hospital every Tuesday with my baby, where we both take a painful treatment. I am obliged to carry the baby in my arms. A baby carriage would be a blessing to us both. I wear size 16 and my husband 38 or 40. Any help will be greatly appreciated.

MRS. S. A. L.

No Clothes for Baby

Helping Hand Editor:

Could you please find some kind readers to help a real needy family where there are four children, boys 11 and 5, girls 8 and 1. The husband has been sick four months, unable to work. The mother was working until a month ago, now she is ill. The children haven't any clothes or shoes and the mother has not taken the baby out since last Winter as she hasn't any clothes for it. I give them all I can, but that isn't much. The other children laugh at the boy and girl when they are going to school.

A FRIEND.

Very Grateful

Helping Hand Editor:

I take great pleasure in writing you this letter as you have been the best friend I ever knew, and I can never send enough thanks to you for you have changed my whole mode of living. I received clothing and shoes for all my little ones and they looked so nice at the school Memorial Day Exercises. If you only could have seen my boy. His teacher even told him how good he looked and it made him so happy as he was ashamed of his clothes before the kind readers helped us. Please thank Mrs. E. F. G. of Roxbury who sent the nicest things and the canned goods which meant the world to us.

also Mrs. W. L. R., of Gloucester for the two wonderful boxes. I could not write them as I did not have their full addresses.

So. Boston. MRS. L. M.

Needs of Others

Mrs. H 1., who has just come from the hospital, would appreciate a coat, dress and underwear, size 38 or 40. Husband makes small wages.

MRS. G. B. would like to get a small place near some beach where she could do laundry work or on the State road where she could have a lunch place. Has six children—girls 10, 8, 3 and 10 months; boys 12 and 6 and they are all in need of Summer clothing.

Mrs. A. R. I. writes about a family, father dead, mother trying to support them. There are seven children, four are badly in need of clothing and shoes, boys 13, 8 and 4 who wear shoes 4½, 4 and 3 and girl, 10 shoes 13.

Mrs. E. M. W. writes of a woman with three children, boy 12, girls 8 and 22 months. Husband has left her. She will thank any from the bottom of her heart for clothing and shoes for them and for herself, size 34.

Mrs. M. T. E. would appreciate a go-cart for her baby 11 months old. Has ten children. Boy needs suit, size 38. Children 2 and 3 years of age also need little shirts. Would be thankful for some furniture such as chairs and a baby's crib. Husband now out of work.

Mrs. B. R. would be grateful for a baby carriage, crib and mattress, also anything in the line of furniture such as rugs, etc. Just going housekeeping.

Mrs. R. B. writes of a young mother who is ill and husband not working steadily, whose boy, 3, is badly in need of clothing; also baby 4 months old.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THROUGH ages pride and power, fame and gold have charmed the thoughtless throng, and yet the common things of living hold deep-springing wells of song. A bee lingers over simple things that pass and pageant miss, a wonder lies upon the bluebird's wings and in the mother's kiss. And merry notes of eager, ardent joy, supreme and undefiled, can linger only quite without alloy in laughter of a child. There is scant splendor at the poor man's hearth and meagre is his fare, yet many a soaring song of matchless worth has first been uttered there. Though stirring sympathies on epic themes shall ring through ages long, they do not touch men's hearts or wake men's dreams like these sweet wells of song.

THE WORLD WAGS ON AFTER US

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ALL of us think that we are of considerable importance and we acquire the impression that affairs could not get along without us.

Sometimes we seem to be very necessary in the eyes of others. It is singular how when death comes we observe the world moving smoothly on.

A Lincoln or a Garfield may be removed. Some hearts are broken, but in the majority of homes life continues as usual.

We throw a pebble into a pool. There are a few ripples, but soon the surface is calm again. Somehow or other this world has a way of wagging on. It moved long years before we came and it will move along after we are gone.

If anyone thinks he is somewhat, it is a good plan for him to go to the cemetery once in a while and see what will become of him.

William Feather says, "Lincoln Steffens, after years of activity in behalf of civilization, reated from his labors, and finally made a public confession in which he said it was a shock to discover that the world did not fall to pieces when he let go."

It may be right for us to take hold and do our share, but we should not think too highly of ourselves. Even if we do not do our share sustenance will come from some other place.

You remember what Mordecai said to Esther: "If thou altogether holdest thy peace at this time, doubtless deliverance and enlargement shall arrive to the Jews from another place, but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed."

Sometimes we get an idea that we are holding up the sky or that the universe depends upon us.

We are but little specks that come and go, and the processes of the suns will go on without our assistance.

SIMPLE PROBLEMS IN MATHEMATICS

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

SOME time ago, without any intention of introducing a mathematical puzzle department into these articles, but in the hope of inducing wider attention to simple mathematics, I showed an inquirer how to determine the circumference of a circle which should have an area equal to that of a rectangular figure of given dimensions.

Many readers immediately manifested interest in the subject, and letters from some of them confirmed the belief that in public instruction the mathematical side has far behind the literary.

One letter is worth serious consideration by all who are interested in the education of the rising generations. I quote from it only the following sentences:

"I am sorry to admit that I have had no schooling in mathematics, and "I can't understand how the outline of an oblong plot containing sixteen square feet can be longer than the outline of a circular plot containing the same number of square feet."

The oblong plot was a rectangle eight by two feet. Its area was therefore sixteen square feet, while its outline was twenty feet around.

Now, a circle containing an area of sixteen square feet would have a circumference, or outline, of only about 14.1671 feet. The explanation lies in the ratio of the circumference to the diameter of a circle.

This ratio, called Pi, and usually expressed in print by the Greek letter Pi has the numerical value of 3.14159, etc., the decimal part never coming to an end, although it has been calculated out to hundreds of places. Generally in calculations the value of Pi is taken as 3.14156, which is slightly too large. A popular substitute is three and one-seventh.

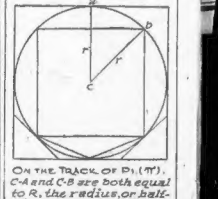
The existence of this most important number arises from the fact that the circumference of a circle is not commensurate with its diameter, i. e., the diameter is not contained an even number of times in the circumference.

Look at the cut to see how this is. There we have a circle inclosed in a square, and also containing a square—the largest that can be drawn within the circle.

The eye sees at glance that the area of the circle is larger than that of the inclosed square and smaller than that of the circumscribed square.

It is also perfectly plain, as indicated by the extra lines at the bottom of the figure, that the inside square can be made to approach to equality with the circle, by increasing the number of its sides, first giving it eight, then sixteen, then thirty-two and so on.

If this process is carried far enough the sides become so short that, to all intents and purposes, the square is transfused into the circle.



On the track of Pi (π). C-c and C-B are both equal to R, the radius, or half-diameter of the circle.

A similar process is indicated at the bottom of the cut whereby the outside circle, by having its sides continually shortened and increased in number, may also be made to coincide with the circle.

By a method similar to this Archimedes more than 2,000 years ago succeeded in estimating the value of Pi quite closely.

Suppose the side of the square in the figure is six feet; then its circumference is twenty-four feet. Now, the diameter of the circle is also six feet, but its circumference, instead of being twenty-four, is only 6x3.1416, equal to 18.8496 feet.

The area of the square is thirty-six square feet; that of the circle (Pi multiplied by the square of its radius, or half-diameter) is only 28.2744 square feet.

ONCE-OVERS

MEN WHO ARE WELL DRESSED HAVE SELF-CONFIDENCE—THOSE WHO ARE POORLY CLAD ARE NEVER AT THEIR BEST IN OTHER RESPECTS

"I never feel well-dressed any more; and when I get with men who are well-dressed I feel uneasy—it seems to me that they look upon me as a failure."

This is a statement of a man who foolishly spends more than it would cost him to dress well and spends it on foolishness.

Every man should dress as well as his circumstances permit.

Dress should be relative to work and finances.

It would be ridiculous for a ditch digger to wear a dress-suit for ditch digging, although he should wear a dress suit at the time other men of his acquaintance put on theirs.

Dress according to your work is the rule.

Successful men are not foppish dressers, but their clothes fit well, are of good material and are kept in proper condition.

A slovenly or poorly dressed man would have a hard time to convince others that he is a success or that he would be able to handle large affairs.

The uneasiness on account of dress is more damaging than the clothes that a poor man must wear.
